REPORT ON THE EIGHTH CENSUS OF CANADA, 1941

To His Excellency Field Marshal the Right Honourable The Viscount Alexander of Tunis, K.G., G.C.B., G.C.M.G., C.S.I., D.S.O., M.C., LL.D., A.D.C., Governor General of Canada.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY:—

I have the honour to lay before your Excellency the eleventh volume of the Report of the Eighth Census of Canada taken as of date June 1, 1941. This volume contains statistics on wholesale trade, retail services, hotels and sales finance companies. Data are presented for the Dominion as a whole, for each of the nine provinces and where possible for counties and census divisions and localities of 1,000 population and over.

I have the honour to be,

Your Excellency's most obedient servant,

JAS. A. MacKINNON,
Minister of Trade and Commerce.

OTTAWA, APRIL 3, 1947.

PREFACE

Volume XI is the second of two volumes of the 1941 Census Report containing the results of the Census of Merchandising and Service Establishments. This volume presents the complete results of the census relating to wholesale trade, service establishments, hotels and sales finance companies. Statistics on the retail merchandise trade of Canada are given in Volume X.

The history and purpose of the census, the legislation under which it is taken, and the methods of collecting, checking, and compiling the data are described in full detail in the Administrative Report of the Dominion Statistician which is published in a separate volume.

While statistics of population, production, external trade and various other aspects of the social and economic life of the country are of long standing, data relating to the form and extent of the distribution of goods and services within the country are of more recent origin. The Census of Merchandising and Service Establishments for 1941 is the second complete census of this type to be taken in Canada. The first complete census of distribution was taken for the year 1930 in connection with the Seventh Decennial Census of 1931, and the results of that work comprise Volume X and XI of the 1931 Census Report. While monthly and annual surveys conducted on a sampling plan have served to indicate the trends in retail and wholesale trade, the results of this second complete census offer the first opportunity of examining in detail the changes which have taken place in the wholesale and retail marketing structure of Canada during the inter-censal years. The census results for 1941 also provide a statistical basis on which to make studies of the Canadian market in the post-war period.

This volume is composed of four sections. Section I gives a detailed analysis of the results of the 1941 Census of wholesale trade. Information is presented on number of establishments, amount of annual sales, value of year-end inventories, and employment and payroll for wholesale establishments classified according to type of operation and kind of business. These figures are given for Canada and the provinces and for each incorporated place of 30,000 population or over. Less detailed figures are shown for each county or census division and for each incorporated locality of 5,000 population or over. Other tables present analyses of wholesale establishments and sales by size of business, form of ownership, number of marketing units, and date of present ownership. Tables showing operating expenses for selected kinds of business, the distribution of wholesalers' sales by class of customer, and commodity sales by kinds of business are also included.

The second section contains somewhat similar information relating to retail service establishments. Section III presents data regarding hotels operating in Canada in 1941. A review of the operations of companies engaged in financing sales of various commodities is contained in Section IV.

The Census of Merchandising and Service Establishments forms part of the Decennial Census of Canada and was taken in the Merchandising and Services Branch of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The material for this volume was prepared by members of the Merchandising and Services Branch under the direction of Mr. A. C. Steedman, Chief, assisted by Mr. A. M. Chipman.

RAPPORT SUR LE HUITIÈME RECENSEMENT DU CANADA, 1941

A. Son Excellence le feld-maréchal le très honorable vicomte Alexander de Tunis, K.G., G.C.B., G.C.-M.G., C.S.I., D.S.O., M.C., LL.D., A.D.C., Gouverneur général du Canada.

PLAISE À VOTRE EXCELLENCE:

J'ai l'honneur de déposer devant votre Excellence le onzième volume du rapport sur le huitième recensement du Canada effectué le 1er juin 1941. Ce volume contient des statistiques sur le commerce de gros, les services de détail, les hôtels et les compagnies de finance. Les données s'appliquent à l'ensemble du Dominion, à chacune des neuf provinces et, si possible, aux comtés et aux divisions de recensement et aux centres de 1,000 habitants et plus.

J'ai l'honneur d'être,

De Votre Excellence le très obéissant serviteur,

JAMES A. MacKINNON,

OTTAWA, le 3 avril 1947.

1. The first part of the paper is devoted to a general discussion of the problem.

2. The second part is devoted to a detailed analysis of the results.

3. The third part is devoted to a discussion of the conclusions.

4. The fourth part is devoted to a discussion of the prospects for further research.

5. The fifth part is devoted to a discussion of the prospects for further research.

6. The sixth part is devoted to a discussion of the prospects for further research.

7. The seventh part is devoted to a discussion of the prospects for further research.

8. The eighth part is devoted to a discussion of the prospects for further research.

PRÉFACE

Le volume XI est le deuxième de deux volumes du rapport sur le recensement de 1941 qui renferment les résultats du recensement des établissements de commerce et de service. Il contient les résultats complets du recensement du commerce de gros, des établissements de service, des hôtels et des compagnies qui financent les ventes. Les statistiques du commerce des marchandises de détail au Canada paraissent au volume X.

Le rapport administratif, publié dans un volume séparé, donne une description complète de l'historique et de l'objet du recensement, de la loi qui le régit et de la méthode de recueillir, de vérifier et de calculer les données.

Alors que les statistiques de la population, de la production, du commerce extérieur et de divers autres aspects de la vie sociale et économique du pays remontent loin en arrière, les données relatives au mode et à l'étendue de la distribution des marchandises et des services à l'intérieur du pays sont d'origine plus récente. Le recensement de 1941 des établissements de commerce et de service est le deuxième recensement complet de ce genre effectué au Canada. Le premier recensement complet de la distribution a été effectué en 1930 en vue du septième recensement décennal de 1931, et ses résultats forment les volumes X et XI du rapport sur le recensement de 1931. Bien que les relevés mensuels et annuels, effectués suivant une méthode d'échantillonnage, aient servi à indiquer la tendance du commerce de gros et de détail, les résultats de ce deuxième recensement complet fournissent la première occasion d'examiner en détail les changements subis par la structure du marché de gros et de détail au Canada au cours des années entre les recensements. Les résultats du recensement de 1941 pourront aussi servir de base statistique aux études qui porteront sur le marché canadien de l'après-guerre.

Le présent volume comprend quatre sections. La section I présente une analyse détaillée des résultats du recensement de 1941 sur le commerce de gros. Elle renseigne sur le nombre d'établissements, le montant des ventes annuelles, la valeur des inventaires de fin d'année et l'emploi et la rémunération versée dans les établissements de gros classés selon le genre d'exploitation et de commerce. Ces chiffres s'appliquent au Canada, aux provinces et à chaque centre incorporé de 30,000 et plus. Des chiffres moins détaillés sont inscrits pour chaque comté ou division de recensement et pour chaque centre incorporé de 5,000 et plus. D'autres tableaux offrent des analyses des établissements de commerce et des ventes selon l'importance du commerce, le mode de propriété, le nombre d'unités d'écoulement et la date d'acquisition de la propriété actuelle. Des tableaux qui donnent les frais d'exploitation de genres choisis de commerce, la répartition des ventes de gros selon la catégorie du client, et les ventes de denrées selon le genre de commerce font également partie de cette section.

La deuxième section contient des renseignements analogues relativement aux établissements de service de détail; la troisième section fournit des données sur les hôtels exploités au Canada en 1941; la quatrième section présente les données du recensement sur les compagnies qui financent les ventes de diverses denrées.

Le recensement des établissements de commerce et de service fait partie du recensement décennal du Canada et a été effectué par la branche du commerce et des services du Bureau Fédéral de la Statistique. La matière du présent volume a été préparée par le personnel de la branche du commerce et des services, sous la direction de son chef, M. A. C. Steedman, assisté de M. A. M. Chipman.

INTRODUCTION

This section presents the statistics of wholesale trade in Canada for the year 1941 secured in connection with the Census of Merchandising and Service Establishments, a project which formed part of the Eighth Decennial Census. This was the second complete census of distribution taken in Canada. The former census of this kind related to the business transacted in 1930 and was taken in connection with the Decennial Census of 1931. There is thus an eleven-year interval between the two periods.

This report was compiled from statistical statements secured by mail from all wholesale trading establishments in Canada. The mailing list for the purpose was prepared by the population census enumerators who were instructed to list the names and addresses of all business firms coming within the scope of the Census of Merchandising and Service Establishments and located in their respective enumeration areas. These lists were supplemented by checking them with various other sources, chiefly the records of firms licensed to operate under the authority of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Statistics on wholesale trade herewith presented show the number of establishments, annual sales, average number of persons employed, annual payroll, year-end inventories and customers' accounts outstanding. A summary of operating expenses in different types of wholesale trading is also given. Other tables show the distribution of wholesalers' sales by class of customer and by commodity groupings.

The tables have been designed so as to permit classification of wholesale establishments on various bases in order to illustrate various aspects and characteristics of this field. A type-of-operation classification segregates wholesale establishments according to the functions performed. The other major grouping is according to kind of business transacted, the basis of classification in this instance being the chief commodity or commodity groups carried. Other tables show wholesale trade further classified by legal form of ownership, size of business, number of units operated and date of present ownership.

The tables vary in their detail for different geographical areas. The most detailed analysis possible is given for Canada as a whole. Where information has been given for the provinces, or for the five economic areas into which the country may be divided, it has been necessary to present figures in more condensed form. Results are shown in as much detail as possible for each incorporated city of 30,000 population or over while summary statistics appear for each county or census division and for each incorporated place of 5,000 or more persons.

SCOPE OF WHOLESALE CENSUS

Retailing is a clear-cut economic activity representing the final stage in the distribution of goods to the consumer. Furthermore, although there are some variations in the degree of service provided, the functions of most retailers are similar in that fundamentally they transact business on their own account with the ultimate user of the products sold. The total value of retail merchandise trade is therefore a significant figure denoting the sum of all expenditures on goods for the satisfaction of personal wants by the ultimate consumer.

The limits of the wholesale field are less clearly defined. In its most restricted sense, wholesale trading could be taken to include the activities of only the wholesale merchants who buy from primary producers, from manufacturers or from other sources and sell to the retail trades for resale to consumers. On the other hand, wholesale trading could be enlarged to cover all trading operations excepting only those incurred in the final stage of distribution to the ultimate consumer. For purposes of the Census of Merchandising and Service Establishments, a concept intermediate between these two extremes has been adopted. Thus, wholesale trading establishments are considered to include not only the wholesale merchants who act as intermediaries between producers on the one hand and retail merchants on the other, but also such types of business as agents and merchandise brokers, commission merchants and assemblers of primary products whether these be independent buyers, cooperative associations or line elevator companies. Manufacturing plants report annually to the Census of Industry Division of the Bureau and therefore are excluded from the Census of Merchandising and Service Establishments, even though they generally sell merchandise on a wholesale basis and thus form part of the wholesale field when considered from the broader point of view. But included in the wholesale section of the census are the sales branches or offices maintained by manufacturing firms for the sale of their products at locations other than those of the producing plants. Included also as a separate category in the wholesale census are the bulk tank stations maintained by wholesale distributors of petroleum products. Firms specializing in the sale of equipment or supplies to industrial, commercial or professional users are considered to be wholesalers rather than retailers. Crown companies engaged primarily in the distribution of merchandise, distributing warehouses, and the film exchanges maintained for the distribution of films to motion picture theatres also come within the scope of these wholesale trade statistics. More detailed descriptions of the various types of business included in the wholesale trade census appear under the heading "Methods of Classification" in a later part of this summary.

A considerable volume of business is transacted between different types of wholesalers falling within the scope of the census. This is particularly true of agents, brokers and the assemblers of primary products, all of which types transact business in substantial volume with other wholesale establishments. Consequently the aggregate of the sales figures for all types of wholesalers included in the wholesale census overstates the volume of business passing out of the wholesale field. The extent to which this duplication occurs in the wholesale trade statistics is apparent from the table contained in the report classifying wholesalers' sales according to type of customer.

OVERLAPPING AGENCIES

A considerable number of business establishments perform functions which overlap the broad groupings or categories into which economic activity may be divided. While the dollar volume of business which wholesalers transact directly with consumers is relatively small, nevertheless an appreciable number of wholesale firms reported that they transacted some retail business. This is particularly true of certain trades, such as dealers in automotive equipment, farm supplies, hardware, electrical products, coal, and lumber and building materials. For some purposes it would be advantageous to sub-divide the total business of such firms, allocating the wholesale and retail portions to the respective sections of the merchandising census. Practical considerations, however, render this impossible so that it is necessary to classify each establishment in its entirety to one phase of the census or another. Establishments operating chiefly on a wholesale basis are assigned to the wholesale census while those operating chiefly on a retail basis, even though transacting some wholesale business, are classified as retail establishments.

Certain chain store companies maintain warehouses which perform some wholesale functions in that goods are purchased in bulk from manufacturers or other suppliers for distribution in smaller lots to their retail outlets. Statistics relating to the operations of the retail stores are included in the retail section of the census. Details regarding the operations of chain store warehouses are excluded from the regular tables of both the retail and wholesale sections of the census but are presented in an appendix to Volume X of the 1941 Census Report dealing with chain stores.

All firms engaged in manufacturing or processing report annually to the Census of Industry Division of the Bureau. Certain firms engaged in manufacturing also act as wholesale distributors of the products made by others. Such firms are generally included in the wholesale section of the merchandising census only when their sales of purchased merchandise exceed sales of goods of their own manufacture. In such instances the entire volume of business transacted, including the sale of both purchased and manufactured goods, is included in the wholesale census. But the employment and payroll data for such establishments as recorded in the wholesale census are exclusive of that applicable to manufacturing activities and reported in the annual return to the Census of Industry. Firms engaged both in manufacturing and also in distributing the goods produced by others, but in which sales of purchased merchandise form less than half the total annual business, are generally excluded entirely from the wholesale census. Exceptions to this practice occur in the case of a few very large firms operating in the dual capacity of manufacturer and wholesale distributor. Here a separate report was secured for their business as wholesale distributors even though sales of-purchased merchandise amounted to less than half the total annual turnover.

Firms engaged in tea blending or coffee roasting are considered as manufacturers and are included in the Census of Industry rather than in the Census of Merchandising and Service Establishments.

HISTORY OF THE CENSUS OF MERCHANDISING AND SERVICE ESTABLISHMENTS

A first attempt at a distribution census designated the "Census of Trading Establishments" was made in Canada during the years 1921-1924 in connection with the population census of 1921. Names and addresses of merchandising firms were collected by the census enumerators and questionnaires were subsequently despatched by mail to all firms thus listed. Pressure of work in connection with other phases of the census rendered it impossible to distribute the schedules until 1924. By that date a considerable number of the firms listed in the census year had closed out. Furthermore, restrictions on staff during the economic stringency of 1924-1925 rendered a proper follow-up of delinquent returns impossible. Consequently the Census of Trading Establishments, while setting a lower limit to the volume of domestic trade, was incomplete.

The second census of distribution, known as the Census of Merchandising and Service Establishments, was taken as part of the Decennial Census of 1931. The population census enumerators were again utilized in the preparation of a mailing list of business firms, the field in this instance being extended to include not only retail and wholesale trading houses but also certain types of business engaged in providing services rather than in the sale of merchandise. These lists were checked for completeness against trade directories and other sources and schedules were despatched in the late summer and early fall soliciting details regarding the business transacted in 1930. About 50 per cent of the census schedules were returned within the time limit stipulated in the instructions but a considerable amount of follow-up work, partly by mail and partly by personal canvass, was required to secure the remainder. The results of this census constitute Volumes X and XI of the 1931 Census Report, and provide the first comprehensive body of statistical data descriptive of the retail and wholesale marketing structure of Canada.

Annual surveys of retail and wholesale trade based on a sampling plan were instituted soon after the completion of the 1930 Census and were carried on until 1941. These, together with monthly surveys based on returns secured from a more limited number of firms, served to give an indication of the trend in retail and wholesale sales during intercensal years. The results of the second complete Census of Merchandising and Service Establishments, taken in connection with the Eighth Decennial Census of 1941 and relating to the business transacted during the census year, provide the first opportunity for examining the developments which have taken place in the marketing organization of the country during the eleven-year period between 1930 and 1941.

METHOD OF TAKING THE CENSUS

The Census of Merchandising and Service Establishments for 1941 was also taken by mail, the mailing list for the purpose having been prepared by the population enumerators who were instructed to list the names, addresses and certain other details regarding each business establishment coming within the scope of the census and located within their respective enumeration areas. Preliminary work on the census commenced in 1940, when decisions were arrived at regarding the general scope of the work and the type of information to be gathered. These decisions were made, partly in the light of experience gained in the earlier census of 1930 and partly in accordance with suggestions and requests received from those interested in the results. Inquiries were directed to representative firms in various trades in order to assure that the questions asked conformed as far as possible with general accounting practice. Schedules were drafted and, after careful revision, were prepared in final form. Seven different types of schedule were used for various branches of the retail trade and five for wholesale establishments. There was a special schedule for hotels and another for sales finance companies. In addition there were special forms for chain stores and other multiple organizations which facilitated the preparation of the required information by such firms.

When the mailing lists of business firms as prepared by the census enumerators were received at the Bureau, they were edited by members of the permanent staff. This was done for the three-fold purpose of deleting extraneous entries, of indicating opposite each entry the type of schedule to be despatched and of inserting notations against entries for certain types of business where experience in the earlier census had shown that special instructions were necessary. A reference number was inserted against each entry according to a scheme of code numbers previously prepared, these reference numbers serving to designate the province, county or census district and city or town as well as the individual establishment listed.

The mailing lists were next completely card-indexed by the census staff, each card containing the reference number, name, address and certain other descriptive information as had been indicated on the list either by the census enumerator or the revising staff. These index cards which were to serve as mailing cards were then sorted into groups according to the type of schedule to be despatched. Special attention was given to mailing cards representing units of chain or other multiple organizations and to cards corresponding to entries against which there were notations indicating that particular instructions were necessary.

The enumerators' mailing lists were checked for completeness by comparing them with an index of business firms prepared in the Licensing Division of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. A considerable number of additional names representing, in the main, smaller establishments were thus secured.

Appropriate schedules were addressed by hand and these, together with an accompanying covering letter, were inserted in window envelopes. The outgoing mail was held until the end of February, 1942, when it was despatched, one month being allowed for the completion and return of the schedules. Almost all the returns were secured by mail. In the final stages of the work, field enumerators were used to obtain reports from approximately three thousand firms out of a total of upwards of two hundred thousand.

When the schedules were received at the Bureau they were checked for completeness of the information furnished. They were then classified, first as between retail and wholesale and, second, according to the kind of business transacted in accordance with a scheme of classifications previously adopted.

For the preliminary compilations of the wholesale census the data obtained from the various respondents were transferred to appropriate record cards together with the kind-of-business and type-of-operation codings which had been assigned. These cards were sorted by hand as required and the totals for each item were taken off with adding machines. For the final reports of the wholesale census, 80-column Hollerith cards were punched and were tabulated in the central mechanical tabulating section of the Bureau. These mechanical tabulations were supplemented by other tables showing the distribution of sales by type of purchaser and sales on a commodity basis compiled by hand from the schedules with the aid of adding machines.

FUNCTIONS OF WHOLESALE ESTABLISHMENTS

The functions performed by wholesale establishments vary greatly for different types of wholesalers. It is not, therefore, possible to list any one set of functions for all types. In the normal three-party system of distribution—manufacturer or producer, wholesaler, retailer—the wholesale merchant formed an integral part of the system. With changes in the distributive system the work may be sub-divided among more specialized types of wholesalers or assumed by the manufacturer or retailer. Nevertheless, the basic functions of wholesale distribution must be carried on regardless of the agency which may be used. These functions may be grouped under the following heads:

- (a) Selling
- (b) Assembling
- (c) Transportation
- (d) Warehousing
- (e) Financing.

The most essential selling operation performed by the wholesaler is that of making and maintaining effective contact between buyers and sellers, in the case of the regular wholesale merchant between manufacturer and assembler on the one hand and the retailer on the other. The task is essentially that of securing information about prospective markets and customers and of telling customers about the kinds, the quantities, the qualities and the prices of goods which are being offered for sale. In the case of well-established products the amount of effort expended on securing or providing information may be small, but one of the chief features of the operations of wholesale establishments is the introduction of new lines of merchandise on which considerable sales effort has to be expended. Wholesalers also co-operate with manufacturers in special sales drives and the expansion of markets. The maintenance of effective contact between buyer and seller generally requires that travellers for the wholesale establishment should regularly visit the retailers in their territory and that buyers should keep in close touch with the suppliers of merchandise.

The second set of functions performed by the wholesaler comes under the head of assembling and involves, in some cases, the sorting, grading, packing and preparation of goods for sale. Although the increasing sales of pre-packaged and processed goods have resulted in the processes just mentioned forming a part of the production of many articles, there are still many products which the wholesaler must assemble. Imported products, such as tea, are often sorted and re-packed by the wholesaler, while in many centres local produce is purchased in bulk and then sorted and graded before sale to the retailer. Even when such processes are not necessary the wholesaler must buy in fairly large quantities and sort out the items to fill the individual orders of retailers. To perform this function satisfactorily, the wholesaler must buy in advance of sales and maintain full stocks of lines likely to be in demand.

The third class of services performed by the wholesaler is concerned with the transportation of the commodity from the producer to the retailer. The wholesaler must first arrange for the transportation of merchandise to his own warehouse and then for the delivery to his customers. Deliveries to local retailers are generally made by the wholesaler, while shipments to distant customers are made by transportation companies.

The warehousing services performed by wholesalers are closely related to the assembling function already discussed. Warehouse space must be provided and protection afforded to merchandise between the time of purchase and sale.

Lastly, the wholesaler must undertake a considerable part of the financing of finished goods and assume the risks of obsolescence of stock, wrong selections, overstocks and price changes. These risks may be grouped under the head of "holding costs". The wholesaler, of course, may hold stocks which are financed by a manufacturer or by loans from a bank. The wholesaler must also, in many instances, extend credit facilities to his customers whether these be retail merchants or the final users of the products sold.

The extent to which the functions enumerated above are performed varies with the kind of business, the type of distributor, the trade served, and the sources of supply. A survey of the development of wholesale trade in Canada shows that the system of distribution is being continually modified and adapted to meet the changes in production and retail distribution. The development of the chain store has brought with it a new type of wholesale establishment, the chain store warehouse, and has necessitated new forms of wholesaling to enable independent stores to meet the competition of the chain stores. The development of voluntary chains serviced by wholesale merchants and the addition of cash-and-carry departments to regular wholesale houses may be largely attributed to the rise of the chain store.

METHODS OF CLASSIFICATION

Conforming with the practice followed in the earlier census for 1930, a separate report was required for each wholesale establishment operating in Canada during 1941 even though the establishment was a branch or sales office of a larger organization. The establishment may have been a regular wholesale house, a bulk tank station distributing petroleum products, a grain elevator located on a railway siding in a rural area, an office, or, occasionally, part of an office shared with other businesses. Each and every recognizable place of business reported as being engaged chiefly in transacting business on a wholesale basis was treated as a separate establishment in the census results.

The collection of wholesale trade statistics on an establishment rather than a company basis enables the compilation of the results according to the geographical location of the establishments involved. Obviously this gives no true indication of the final destination of the products sold since the sales territories of individual establishments might be Dominion-wide or even extend into the foreign field. Results on a geographical basis indicate rather the volume of wholesale business transacted in various cities or other areas of the country.

In addition to the geographical analysis, the results of the wholesale census for 1941 are presented under two basic classifications: (1) types of operation—according to the character of the functions performed by the various wholesale establishments and (2) kinds of business—based partly upon popular designation but more particularly upon the relative importance of the various commodities sold. A third basis of classification divides the wholesale trading establishments according to the nature of the legal form of ownership under which the business is carried on.

Types of Operation

In the preceding section dealing with the functions of wholesale establishments, it was pointed out that there are great variations in this respect amongst different firms. Some wholesalers perform a wide variety of functions such as buying, assembling, sorting and grading, warehousing, selling, and extending credit, while others perform only some of these services. Since employment, payroll and other operating features naturally vary with the extent of the services provided, it is important that a classification of the establishments should be made according to the functions performed. In doing this, various bases for classification may be used. For example, firms may be classified:

- (a) According to whether they operate on their own account or act as agents or brokers on behalf of others.
- (b) According to whether they carry stocks on their own account, on consignment, or do not carry stocks at all.
- (c) According to the degree of delivery service rendered.
- (d) According to whether the selling or the buying and assembling function is stressed.
- (e) According to whether engaged chiefly in domestic or in foreign trade.
- (f) According to the basis of ownership of the establishment in question, whether owned independently or forming part of a parent organization.

These and other bases for classification provide for a great variety of combinations. Since the number of different classifications used in the census must be kept within workable limits, it was necessary to follow certain more or less arbitrary rulings when dealing with cases where overlapping bases for classification might apply. For example, a certain number of manufacturers located in other countries maintain sales branches or offices in Canada. These branches could be classified as manufacturers' sales branches on the basis of ownership; they could also be classified as importers because they specialize in imported merchandise. The latter classification has been used in such instances. A second illustration of this feature is to be found in the case of firms located in other countries and having buying offices in Canada for the purpose of securing merchandise to be shipped to the parent company at home. These buying offices could be classified in the census results as exporters since they are engaged chiefly in the export trade. They could also be classified as resident buyers or purchasing agents for which a separate classification is provided. Here again the latter classification has been given precedence. A third and perhaps more important case was that of line elevator companies, dealing in grain products. In this instance, the assembling rather than the selling function has been stressed and the line elevator rather than the export merchant classification has been used.

In classifying by type of operation, the wholesale field has been divided into six major groups. Each of these major groups is composed of a number of more detailed related types of which there were 31 in all. The following paragraphs present a brief description of these various classifications according to type.

1. Wholesalers Proper

This major group includes wholesale establishments engaged primarily in buying and selling goods on their own account. Most of the firms included in this category perform the complete wholesaling functions enumerated in an earlier section but a certain number do not. The following are the definitions used in classifying wholesalers proper:

Wholesale merchants.—These are the wholesale houses which perform the full functions of jobbers or wholesalers. They buy merchandise in large quantities on their own account and sell in broken lots. They maintain places of business including warehouses for the storage of the merchandise in which they deal. They invoice, make deliveries, extend credit to their customers and assume the risks inherent in the type of business that they carry on. They usually sell to dealers or retailers by means of salesmen who regularly call upon the trade. In addition this classification includes the supply and equipment houses dealing in producers' goods such as machinery, equipment and supplies, and selling chiefly to industrial or commercial users. The firms in this classification deal chiefly in merchandise of Canadian origin; otherwise they would be classified as import merchants.

Voluntary group wholesalers.—The schedule used for the wholesale section of the census asked whether or not the reporting establishment either sponsored or was affiliated with a voluntary chain of retail stores, that is, a number of independent retailers grouped for buying or advertising purposes. All wholesale merchants which indicated that such a relationship existed were assigned to this classification irrespective of the portion of their sales made to retail members of such organizations. This type of wholesaler is found operating chiefly in the grocery trade. Limited numbers were reported as specializing in such lines of business as automotive equipment, drugs and hardware.

Export merchants.—These are wholesale merchants specializing in the export trade. They buy and sell on their own account and differ from regular wholesale merchants chiefly in that the major portion of their business is with buyers in other countries. Export merchants are found operating chiefly in the primary products trades, especially grain, fish and sea foods, and lumber and other forest products. Canadian branches of foreign firms established for the purpose of purchasing goods to be sent abroad to the parent company are classified as purchasing agents or resident buyers rather than as export merchants.

Import merchants.—Import merchants resemble regular wholesale merchants insofar as functions are concerned. They buy and sell on their own account, carry stocks and perform the services offered by the wholesale merchant class. Their chief distinction lies in their source of purchases, which is primarily foreign. Included in this category are the Canadian sales branches of foreign firms located in Canada and maintained for the purpose of selling the products supplied by the home office. Resembling wholesale merchants as they do and differing from them only in their foreign rather than domestic source of supply, import merchants are found operating in a wide variety of trades. They are particularly important in the automotive equipment trade, the coal trade, the fruit and vegetable trade and in various subdivisions of the wholesale textile trade.

Drop shippers and desk jobbers.—The drop shipper or desk jobber operates from an office, buys and sells on his own account but maintains no warehouse and does not handle the goods in which he deals. He takes title to the goods which he orders from the producer and assumes all risks incident to such ownership. He extends credit to his customers on his own responsibility and makes his own collections. In Canada this type of wholesaler is found chiefly in the coal and coke and in the lumber trades. The merchandise is frequently ordered after a purchaser is located and is shipped directly from the supplier to the purchaser. The pure drop shipper carries no stocks. Some firms, however, act in the dual capacity of drop shipper and wholesale merchant so that certain inventories are shown in the census results for this classification.

Mail order wholesalers.—The mail order wholesaler, as the name implies, transacts the major portion of his business by mail, using methods similar to those used by mail order houses in the retail field. Most wholesale merchants receive some business by mail and many mail order houses in the wholesale field have outside solicitors whose duty it is to visit the trade, solicit orders and build up good-will. This type of wholesaler is a relatively unimportant one in Canada. Instances are found in a considerable variety of non-related trades.

Wagon distributors.—These are wholesalers who operate from trucks rather than from an established place of business although an office or other headquarters of some kind will generally be maintained. They perform most of the functions of regular wholesale merchants, the chief difference being that in this instance the selling and delivery functions are performed simultaneously by salesmen drivers who sell and deliver as they go. Wagon distributors are of considerable importance in certain of the food products trades. Confectionery, soft drinks and perishable products such as bakery items and fresh fruits and vegetables are commonly sold by this type of distributor. Wagon distributors carry relatively small stocks and usually sell for cash or on a short-term credit basis.

This classification does not, of course, include the truck delivery systems maintained by manufacturers for the delivery of their own products. The term applies only to wholesalers employing this method of distribution who buy from one or more suppliers for resale to their customers, these customers consisting to a large degree of the smaller retail merchants.

II. Manufacturers' Sales Branches and Offices

These consist of sales offices or branches maintained by manufacturers at locations apart from the plant primarily for the purpose of securing orders for the products manufactured by their company. The functions and methods of operation of these establishments vary for different firms: stocks may be carried, not carried at all, or carried to a limited degree; invoicing may be done from these sales branches, from the head office only, or partly from the branches and partly from the head office; all employees of the sales branches may be direct employees of the parent company or they may be employed by the manager of the branch and paid out of his commissions; the other expenses of operation of the branches may be paid directly by the parent company or they may be paid by the branch manager from an overriding commission which he receives; sales through the branches may be made to wholesale merchants, to retailers, or to industrial consumers. Separately incorporated selling organizations which are subsidiaries of manufacturing firms and which act as the distributing organization for the products made by the parent companies are classified as wholesalers proper rather than as manufacturers' sales branches.

District or general sales offices.—For census purposes this broad group of manufacturers' sales branches and offices has been divided into three more detailed classifications. The first consists of district or general sales offices of manufacturing firms when operating as a separate unit apart from the manufacturing plant. Included also under this category are the district sales offices maintained by certain manufacturers, in particular the refiners of petroleum products, for the purpose of supervising the activities of the sales branches located within their respective areas. Government contracts, export and other large orders are generally filled through the general sales offices.

Manufacturers' sales branches (with stocks).—This is the most common and important type. These sales branches carry a fairly complete line of stock, may or may not do the invoicing of goods sold but generally have charge of the collection of accounts in their district. Orders are secured by salesmen who cover the territory adjacent to their branch location. Orders for expensive equipment may be initiated through the branch office and then referred to the head office for further negotiation. Manufacturers' sales branches with stocks are found operating in a wide variety of trades. Manufacturers of paints and varnishes, electrical apparatus, industrial and commercial machinery, certain food products and flour in particular, and various textile products commonly use this method of distributing the goods which they produce.

Manufacturers' sales branches (without stocks).—These are permanent offices with permanent staffs but which have no facilities for the storage and delivery of merchandise. They are engaged in soliciting orders to be filled by direct delivery from the producing plant. Invoicing is done from the head office but delinquent accounts are frequently collected by the branch. Although less numerous than sales branches with stocks, this type of distributing outlet is of considerable importance in point of view of volume of business transacted.

III. Petroleum Bulk Tank Stations

Bulk tank stations are the wholesale depots from which petroleum products, chiefly gasoline and oil, are distributed by tank wagon to retailers, to industrial and other large users, to distributors or jobbers and to farmers. The majority of the bulk tank stations are owned by companies engaged in refining and for this reason might be considered as manufacturers' sales branches. Bulk tank stations are distinguished from other manufacturers' sales outlets primarily by their physical characteristics consisting of storage facilities at railroad stations or on other transportation lines. Wholesale distributors selling petroleum packaged goods other than gas or oil are included in the wholesalers proper classification and not here.

Three sub-classifications within the major group are defined as follows:

Independent stations.—These are single bulk tank stations operated as individual establishments rather than as part of a multiple organization of any kind.

Commission stations.—This is the most common type of bulk tank station and consists of wholesale depots owned by the petroleum distributors and operated by agents or lessees. The arrangements between the owners and the operators regarding remuneration of the agents, payment of operating expenses and collection of accounts are not uniform for all firms. Some agency stations are operated on a consignment sale basis. In most instances the operators of these stations are paid commissions which include amounts to cover employees' wages and other operating costs. In such cases, station personnel are considered as employees of the operator rather than of the owner of the station.

Salary stations.—These stations are owned and operated by the wholesale distributing companies. All personnel of these salary stations are considered as direct employees of the oil companies owning the bulk plants.

IV. Agents and Brokers

This major type includes individuals or firms having recognizable places of business and engaged in arranging for the purchase or sale of commodities on behalf of others. They do not buy or sell outright, their chief function being to find purchasers for the products of domestic or foreign producers or to find supplies for domestic or foreign wholesalers. As a rule they do not handle the merchandise but place orders with the producer for direct shipment to the buyer. Agents may represent one or more clients and frequently specialize in certain lines. An additional function of agents and brokers is the furnishing of marketing information. The income of agents and brokers is derived from commissions or fees which are levied on the basis of the value or quantity of the goods for which orders are secured. The volume of sales shown in the tables contains estimated figures as many agents do not maintain records on the volume of business handled. Terms used in referring to different types of agents are not synonymous in all trades but the generally accepted definitions follow.

Auction companies.—Classified here are concerns engaged in the sale of commodities at wholesale by the auction method. They do not take title to the goods but do provide a place for public inspection and sale of the merchandise, which they generally handle on a consignment basis. Their remuneration is in the form of a commission which is deducted, along with other charges, before the proceeds of the sale are remitted to their clients. Auction companies are important in the furs (raw and dressed) trade.

Brokers.—These act as representatives of either buyers or sellers. They do not take title to or do any physical handling of the goods, nor do they finance their clients or handle the invoicing. They are free to serve any client and their relations with any one client are not continuous as is the case with selling agents or manufacturers' agents. The powers of brokers as to prices and terms of sale are limited by their principals. Brokers generally deal in larger quantities than other types of agents. Another function of brokers is to provide their principals with marketing information. The broker's commission is usually based on the quantity or value of merchandise entering into the transaction. Brokers are important in the grain, dairy products, fruits and vegetables, and groceries and food specialties trades. It should be noted that in the grain trade only cash brokers have been included in the wholesale census. Futures brokers are not included.

Commission merchants.—This type differs from most other agents in that, while they do not take title to the goods which they sell, they do handle and store the merchandise on a consignment basis, generally do the invoicing and make deliveries to purchasers. They are free to arrange sales at the most advantageous prices from which they deduct their commissions and other charges and remit the remainder to their principals. They often extend credit at their own risk. As a rule, the commission merchant's relation with his principal is not a continuous one. Commission merchants frequently combine their agency functions with those of regular wholesale merchants, buying some goods outright and selling them on their own account. The trades in which commission merchants are most numerous are the dry goods and apparel, farm products, particularly livestock, and groceries and food specialties. A considerable number are also found in the food products (except groceries) and in the machinery trades.

Export agents and brokers.—This group includes all types of agents and brokers engaged in arranging sales to buyers in foreign countries. They act in a manner similar to their counterparts in domestic trade and may represent clients in other countries in the purchase of Canadian merchandise or they may sell for Canadian firms to buyers outside of Canada. Export agents are most commonly found in the farm products and lumber trades, although they sometimes handle a diversity of lines of merchandise required by a particular market rather than a specialty or related line of goods.

Import agents and brokers.—These are agencies which arrange for the sale in Canada of products from foreign countries. They operate in a manner similar to their counterparts in domestic trade. Occasionally, as in the case of export merchants, they handle a group of unrelated commodities from the same source. Import agents are found in many trades to a certain extent but are most numerous in the dry goods and apparel trade particularly in piece goods. Other kinds of business important in this type of agents are farm products (raw materials), groceries and food specialties, and machinery, equipment and supplies (except electrical).

Manufacturers' agents.—Manufacturers' agents sell part of the output of certain manufacturers with whom they maintain continuous relations. They usually operate in a limited area and within restrictions laid down by their principals as to prices and terms of sale. They do no collecting of accounts and do not assume any credit risks. Their principal function is selling, although some may carry small stocks. They are similar to regular salesmen but are distinguished from them in that they are in business for themselves rather than as employees of a manufacturer, and usually represent two or more manufacturers of related but non-competing lines. Manufacturers' agents are most numerous in the dry goods and apparel, groceries and food specialties, and machinery, equipment and supplies trades.

Purchasing agents and resident buyers.—In this class are independent agents engaged in purchasing merchandise on behalf of their clients, with whom they generally maintain continuous contractual relations. They are to be distinguished from the type of purchasing agent employed by a manufacturing plant who is not in business for himself but merely works for a single employer. Grain and lumber are the two trades in which this type of operation is most common.

Selling agents.—These are independent agents operating on a commission basis, whose principal function is to handle the entire output or the output of a given line of goods for the manufacturer or manufacturers whom they represent. They also differ from manufacturers' agents in that they have considerable freedom as regards sales territory to be covered, prices, terms of sale, etc., and often assume a considerable part of the financial responsibility. Another function of selling agents is assisting in advertising and sales promotion activities. Selling agents are found chiefly in the chemicals, drugs and allied products and textile products (other than dry goods) trades.

V. Assemblers of Primary Products

This major group includes several types of wholesalers with a common distinguishing feature: they are engaged in the assembly of primary products which they purchase directly from the farmers or other primary producers for more economical handling and shipping than could be realized by the individual producer. This category includes assemblers of fish, furs and forest products, as well as agricultural products. Assemblers of primary products may buy and sell outright or may act on a commission basis for a larger dealer.

City buyers of primary products.—Included here are persons or firms with establishments in places of 5,000 population or over engaged in the purchase of primary products directly from farmers, trappers, fishermen, etc. They generally buy outright, but may act on a commission basis for larger dealers. Farm products (raw materials), farm supplies, and food products (except groceries) are the most important lines handled by this type, but a certain number also operate in the forest-products trade. City buyers of primary products closely resemble regular wholesale merchants, the chief distinction being that they buy directly from the producers.

Cooperative marketing associations.—In this group are the local associations formed by groups of producers of farm products in certain localities for the purpose of marketing their products at the most advantageous prices and lowest cost. The associations operate for the mutual benefit of the patrons and frequently handle farm supplies such as feed, seeds, fertilizer, etc., as a service to their members. Each local of a cooperative association was asked for a separate report whether they sold through a central sales agency or not. Thus there is a certain amount of duplication between the sales of this type and the cooperative sales agency group, since the latter represents to some extent the second stage in distribution. Line elevators operated on a cooperative basis were included under the special classification for line elevators and not under cooperative marketing associations.

Cooperative sales agencies.—These are the central selling offices maintained by cooperative marketing associations to arrange for the orderly marketing of agricultural products. These cooperative sales agencies sell in the larger commodity or livestock markets or handle export sales. Government sponsored non-profit organizations such as the Nova Scotia Apple Marketing Board and B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd. have not been included in the wholesale census.

Country buyers of primary products.—These are persons or firms performing the same functions as described under city buyers of primary products but located in places of less than 5,000 population.

Elevators (independent).—Country elevators locally owned and operated for the assembling and marketing of grain are classified in this group. Several elevators may be operated under the same ownership but as a rule they are single-unit establishments. Only elevators buying from farmers have been included in the census. Terminal elevators and storage elevators have been omitted.

Elevators (line).—This type includes the local elevators owned by the large grain or milling companies. Cooperatively owned elevators are also included here. Since the main function of these elevators is assembling and not selling, the volume of business reported was the value of cash payments to farmers at each elevator point. This procedure differs from that followed in the 1931 Census when the grain companies reported the value of sales made from their head offices which in most cases were located in Winnipeg.

Packers and shippers.—This classification includes firms engaged in assembling, selling, packing and shipping fish and other sea foods, and fruits and vegetables. Fishermen who do their own packing are not included, nor are growers of fruits and vegetables who also do their own packing and shipping.

VI. Other Types of Operation

Distributing warehouses.—This classification covers warehouses which combine the functions of storage and distribution of merchandise. The sale of goods, however, must account for at least 50 per cent of the revenue before a warehouse is assigned to this classification. Warehouses generally buy and sell on their own account. Included in this group and forming the largest proportion of the total number of distributing warehouses are the brewers' warehouses in Ontario and the beer agencies in Quebec. Warehouses operated by chain store companies and by Government Liquor Control Boards are not included in the wholesale census of 1941.

Film exchanges.—These are the agencies through which motion picture films are distributed to the exhibitors and through which rentals are collected. The sales shown for film exchanges in the tables represent the amount received from rental of films and, to a small extent, the sale of advertising material.

Government-owned companies.—These are crown companies engaged principally in the accumulation, storage, and distribution of a number of commodities particularly required for the war effort.

Kinds of Business

Wholesale trading establishments are classified by kinds of business on the basis of the commodities sold as indicated on the schedule, either in the commodity section or in the general description of the business. From a commodity point of view the kind-of-business classifications fall into four main groups.

There is the specialty type classification to which were assigned firms which carried one specialized group of commodities, such as men's clothing and furnishings, women's apparel and/or furnishings, piece goods, shoes, dairy products, poultry products.

Secondly, there is the dual type classification consisting of firms specializing in two of the commodity groups for which there are specialty type classifications. Examples of these dual type classifications are: clothing and/or furnishings, men's and women's; dairy and poultry products; fruits and vegetables.

The third type of classification is the general line type to which were assigned firms carrying a more or less complete line of related products such as the following: general line of dry goods, general line of hardware, general line of groceries.

The fourth and last type consists of firms which could not be classified as general line, but which did not specialize sufficiently in any one group of commodities to be classified as specialty or dual types. Such firms were assigned to a residual class generally known as the "all other" type. Included here also were firms whose description of their business was sufficient to allow their assignment to the proper broad commodity group but where the information furnished was too meagre to allow the use of a more detailed classification.

A complete list of the 148 detailed kind-of-business classifications, with a description of each, will be found in Appendix B of this volume. While every wholesale schedule has been assigned to a particular classification, the publication of full particulars for each classification is dependent on the number of firms engaged in the kind of business. Where it was impossible to present full detail without revealing the operations of individual establishments, the detailed kind-of-business classifications were combined and results shown for the broader groups only.

Forms of Organization

Wholesale merchandising establishments have been classified under five headings according to the nature of the ownership under which they operate. The five classifications are individual proprietorships, partnerships, corporations, cooperatives and "other forms". Cooperatives include only marketing cooperatives and wholesale purchasing cooperatives. Retail stores operating on a cooperative basis have been included in the retail census, while the sales of cooperative associations formed for the purpose of purchasing, for members, supplies such as feed, seeds, fertilizer, binder twine, etc. are shown in Appendix B of Volume X of the 1941 Census Report. Included in "other forms of organization" are Crown companies and businesses operated by estates or trust companies.

COMPARISONS WITH THE EARLIER CENSUS

Comparisons of the results of the wholesale census of 1941 with those of the earlier census for the year 1930 must be made with due regard to certain variations in the scope of the two surveys and changes in methods of classification. In the main, the scope and content of the two censuses are similar. The coverage for 1941 may be more complete than that of the earlier survey because in the latter period a check on the enumerators' lists was afforded by the records of the Licensing Division of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Certain differences in classification may account for non-comparability of the two years' figures. Firms have been classified on the basis of their major activity and a shift in the wholesale-retail proportion of sales of borderline cases would result in firms that were classified as retail in 1930 being included in the wholesale classification in 1941, or vice versa. Then too, changes in the commodity make-up of certain establishments might result in a firm being classified in a different kind-of-business class in the 1941 tabulations than was the case in the 1931 Census. Similarly, variations in method of operation may have resulted in shifts between the different type-of-operation classes.

There were also certain specific differences in the two surveys which should be noted when comparing the results. First, chain store warehouses and Government Liquor Control warehouses were included in the 1930 wholesale figures but were omitted from the 1941 Census. Then, figures for line elevator companies were reported on a different basis. In the earlier census, line elevator companies reported information for their sales organization only and the total volume of sales was attributed to the locality in which the head office was situated, usually Winnipeg. In the recent census, the assembly function of these companies was stressed and a separate report was received for each elevator point. These were assigned to the localities in which the elevators were situated and the amount of business shown for this classification in the 1941 report refers to the cash payments made to farmers at the local purchasing points.

Another difference in classification between 1930 and 1941 occurs in the case of meat packers' sales branches. In 1930, these were considered as wholesale merchants; in 1941 they were classed as manufacturers' sales branches.

A factor which is not a change in classification but which has a bearing on the comparability of the two sets of results is the separate incorporation of subsidiary sales organizations of some manufacturers between the two years. Such corporations, owned by but operating under separate name and charter from the parent producing company, have been classified as wholesalers proper in 1941 while in 1930 their figures were included in the manufacturers' sales branches or district or general sales offices classifications.

EXPLANATION OF TERMS

Number of Establishments.—A separate return was required from each wholesale establishment in Canada which was operated during the year 1941 even though the establishment was a branch or sales office of a larger organization. The number of establishments shown in the tables indicates the number of separate places of business in which wholesale trading was the primary function.

Sales.—The sales figures reported represent the net sales, that is gross sales less returned goods and allowances, in the case of those firms which actually handle the financial transactions. In the case of agents working on a commission or fee basis, the net sales represent the value of orders placed during the year. There are one or two exceptions which should be noted. The amounts shown as sales in the case of line elevators in the grain trade represent the cash payments to farmers at local elevator points rather than the value of sales made by the selling organizations of the grain companies. For film exchanges, the figures shown are the rentals on films received from exhibitors together with a smaller amount which represents the sale of advertising material. Included also in "Sales" are any receipts from subsidiary services or sources other than sale of merchandise which were included in the total business of the reporting firms.

Firms were asked to indicate what proportion of their sales was made on their own account, that is from merchandise which they owned, and what proportion was made on a commission basis, whether from stock held on consignment or simply on an order basis for delivery directly to the purchaser from the supplier. The tables, therefore, show the proportion of the total sales volume which was conducted by each of these methods.

While the total sales for all types of wholesalers are shown in some of the tables, it should be borne in mind that these figures will include some duplications in the value of goods actually passing through the wholesale stage of distribution. A considerable amount of trade is carried on between the specialized types of wholesalers, particularly agents, brokers, and assemblers of primary products. Larger wholesalers also frequently service smaller wholesalers or jobbers. The extent to which the different types of wholesalers overlap is indicated in Table 12, Distribution of Sales by Class of Customer.

Proprietors.—This term covers all owners of unincorporated establishments who devote all, or practically all, of their time to the conduct of the business. Firm members of incorporated firms were not reported here but were included with employees.

No figures appear in the tables on proprietors' salaries and withdrawals as this information was not consistently reported.

Number of employees.—The number of employees shown is the number of full-time employees on the payrolls of the establishments reporting. Generally, the average number of employees for the year was reported but in certain cases the number of employees on the payrolls at the date the report was furnished was given. Only regular employees of the firm were to be reported. This includes working executives of incorporated companies, salesmen and all other hired help employed on a full-time basis. Independent agents receiving a commission from the reporting firms were not to be included as employees. Employees of wholesaler-manufacturers engaged solely in the production end of the business were excluded as these are reported annually to the Census of Industry Division of the Bureau of Statistics. Remuneration of employees engaged in manufacturing only was also omitted from the salaries and wages shown.

Salaries, wages and commissions.—Under this heading is shown the total amount paid to employees during the year before deductions for National Defence Tax and social services such as Unemployment Insurance. These figures relate to the number of employees as described above.

Stocks on hand.—This item shows the cost or replacement value of stocks on hand in wholesale establishments at the end of 1941. Stocks are shown under two headings. The first heading includes owned stocks on hand as well as the wholesalers' stocks which are out on consignment to other persons or firms. The value of stocks held on consignment in wholesale establishments is shown under the second heading "Held on consignment".

Accounts outstanding.—Establishments were asked to report the value of customers' accounts and notes outstanding on their books at December 31, 1941, not including accounts written off. Not all firms reported accounts outstanding so that the amounts shown under this heading represent only those firms which provided the information. While it is believed to be fairly complete, this factor should be taken into consideration when using this item.

ANALYSIS OF RESULTS

General Summary

There were 24,758 establishments in Canada classified as wholesale establishments for the Census of Merchandising and Service Establishments, 1941. These establishments reported a total sales volume of $5,290,750,500, of which $4,278,341,500 was "own account" business and $1,012,409,000 was business done on a commission basis. Wholesale establishments provided employment for 131,127 persons, of whom 13,656 were proprietors or firm members and 117,471 were employees on a salary or wage basis. Of the 117,471 employees, 94,627 were male and 22,844 female. The total payroll for these employees amounted to $189,449,100 or an average of $1,613 per person. Owned stocks on hand in wholesale establishments at the end of 1941 were valued at $492,921,000 while stocks held by wholesalers on consignment for others amounted to $25,539,500.

Wholesale Trade by Types of Operation

As has already been mentioned, wholesale establishments have been classified by type of operation according to the functions performed. The total sales of $5,290,750,500 were made up as follows: $2,358,475,300 or 44.6 per cent by wholesalers proper, $1,206,993,800 or 22.8 per cent by manufacturers' sales branches, $216,292,300 or 4.1 per cent by petroleum bulk tank stations, $907,520,300 or 17.2 per cent by agents and brokers, $453,300,500 or 8.5 per cent by assemblers of primary products, and $148,168,300 or 2.8 per cent by other types. These sales volumes, of course, include the various duplications in business transacted between one type and another mentioned in the preceding section, "Explanation of Terms". The following table shows the number of establishments and sales for each of these major types of operation.

The most important type among wholesalers proper as regards both number of units and volume of business is the wholesale merchant. These are the full-function wholesalers providing warehouse and delivery service, extending credit and assuming the financial risks involved therein. There were 7,075 wholesale merchants with a sales volume of $1,425,002,400 in 1941. Similar to wholesale merchants are the voluntary group wholesalers of which there were 100 with sales amounting to $131,658,400. This type includes all wholesalers who indicated that they either sponsored or were affiliated with a voluntary chain of retail stores irrespective of what proportion of their sales was made to retail members of such organizations.<sup>(1)</sup> Voluntary group wholesalers were found to be operating chiefly in the grocery trade, although limited numbers were also reported in the automotive equipment, drug, and hardware trades.

Second in importance among the wholesalers proper were the import merchants operating 1,479 establishments and reporting sales of $457,744,400. Import merchants perform much the same functions as wholesale merchants but, as the term implies, deal chiefly in merchandise purchased from suppliers in other countries.

Export merchants, also somewhat similar to wholesale merchants but doing the major proportion of their business with foreign countries, numbered 146 and had sales of $189,027,600.

Other types of wholesalers classified under the major type of wholesalers proper, but more limited in the functions which they perform, were drop shippers and desk jobbers which operated 149 establishments with sales amounting to $144,530,500, wagon distributors numbering 447 and doing a business of $9,134,800, and mail order wholesalers with 21 establishments and sales of $1,377,200.

Of the 1,622 establishments classified as manufacturers' sales branches and offices, 1,139 were sales branches with stocks, 387 were sales branches without stocks, and 96 were district or general sales offices of manufacturers. Manufacturers' sales branches with stocks reported sales of $564,228,000, branches without stocks had sales of $243,547,100, while district and general sales offices handled business valued at $399,218,700.

The 3,973 petroleum bulk tank stations were divided into three classifications. The largest volume of business, or $142,602,400, was done by 777 "salary stations" operated by the large oil refiners and importers. Stations operated by agents on a commission basis numbered 3,052 and sales of this group amounted to $61,402,500, while there were 144 independently owned and operated bulk tank stations with sales of $12,287,400.

Brokers constituted the most important classification under the general heading of "agents and brokers" from the point of view of volume of business handled. There were 158 establishments classified as brokers and these had sales of $243,220,500. Far outnumbering the other types of agents as to establishments and following closely behind brokers as to amount of business transacted were the 1,031 manufacturers' agents with sales amounting to $217,016,500. Commission merchants were next in importance in value of transactions, the 396 establishments so classified being responsible for $145,290,000 worth of business. There were 422 import agents and brokers with sales of $119,802,900 and 37 export agents and brokers who handled orders valued at $115,403,800. Other specialized types of agents were purchasing agents and resident buyers with 30 establishments and sales of $33,949,300, 17 selling agents with sales of $19,306,600, and 15 auction companies with sales of $13,530,700.

Line-elevator companies through their 5,275 units made cash payments to farmers of $238,806,600 or a little more than 50 per cent of the total volume of business handled by assemblers of primary products in the year 1941. The 326 cooperative marketing associations made sales for their members of $64,070,800, while 33 cooperative sales agencies handled sales valued at $59,862,100. There were 1,111 persons or firms classified as country buyers of primary products having sales of $46,468,700, 529 city buyers of primary products with sales of $31,992,200, 56 packers and shippers whose sales amounted to $6,547,000, and 36 independent elevators with a total volume of business of $5,553,100.

In the residual group, there appear 200 distributing warehouses consisting principally of brewers' agents in the province of Quebec and the brewers' warehouses in Ontario. These had sales of $42,553,200. Film exchanges operating 69 establishments had receipts, chiefly from rentals of films, amounting to $13,028,700 while the 5 government-owned companies reporting had sales of $92,586,400.

Geographical Distribution of Establishments and Sales

Almost 46 per cent of all wholesale establishments included in the 1941 Census were located in the provinces of Ontario and Quebec, and these establishments handled 66 per cent of the total sales reported. The concentration is even more pronounced in the case of wholesalers proper, of which 72.5 per cent were in Ontario and Quebec. Wholesalers proper in these two provinces handled 71 per cent of the total trade for that type in Canada.

The business done by agents and brokers was also fairly heavily concentrated in Ontario and Quebec, these provinces accounting for 55 per cent of the total business transacted by this type of wholesaler. Manitoba also accounted for a considerable proportion of the total business of agents and brokers due to the presence in Winnipeg of grain brokerage firms. Agents and brokers in this province accounted for 27 per cent of the sales handled by the group as a whole.

The grain trade in the Prairie Provinces also accounts for the greater concentration of the business of assemblers of primary products in these provinces than is to be found in the east. Of the 7,366 assemblers of primary products, 77 per cent were located in the Prairie Provinces and these accounted for 66 per cent of the sales of this type.

Bulk tank stations were also more numerous in the Prairie Provinces, this region accounting for 69 per cent of all bulk stations in Canada but only 29 per cent of the total sales. Ontario was first in importance from the point of view of volume of business, the 510 establishments located in that province forming 13 per cent of the total number and making sales of $90,687,200 or 42 per cent of the total sales of all bulk tank stations. The percentage distribution of establishments and sales by provinces for each of the major types of wholesalers is shown in the following table.

Table III gives figures for the four leading cities in Canada and shows the extent to which wholesale markets in Canada are located in the large centres of population. The concentration is more marked for wholesalers proper since the other types, particularly assemblers, are by their nature more frequently found in rural areas. Of the 9,417 wholesalers proper, 5,005 or 53.1 per cent were located in the four largest cities, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, and Vancouver. Wholesalers proper in these cities had sales amounting to $1,526,413,000 or almost 65 per cent of the total volume of business done by all wholesalers proper in Canada.

Size of Wholesale Establishments

While 72 per cent of all wholesale establishments reported sales of less than $100,000 in the year 1941, establishments in this size range did only 11 per cent of the total volume of business. On the other hand, less than 4 per cent of all establishments had a sales volume of over $1,000,000 but these accounted for 55 per cent of the total sales.

The distribution of establishments by size of business varies considerably for the different types as well as for the particular trades within each type. Among wholesalers proper, 63 per cent of the establishments had annual sales of less than $100,000 but these establishments accounted for only 7.5 per cent of the total trade of the group, while 51 per cent of the total business was done by 4.5 per cent of the establishments whose annual sales ranged upward from $1,000,000.

An even greater proportion of the total business of manufacturers' sales branches and of agents and brokers was done by the larger establishments. In the former group, 73 per cent of the total was done by establishments with sales of $1,000,000 and over, while 66 per cent of the business handled by agents was done by the same size class. At the other end of the sales-size scale, the proportion of manufacturers' sales branches and of agents and brokers in the under $100,000 sales class was smaller than in the case of wholesalers proper, the number reported here being 34 per cent and 51 per cent respectively of the total for each group. These smaller establishments accounted for only 2 per cent and 4 per cent respectively of the volume of business handled by their groups.

Petroleum bulk tank stations and assemblers tended to be more numerous in the smaller size groups, 88 per cent of the former group and 91 per cent of the latter falling in the under $100,000 sales class, while 35 per cent of the sales of petroleum bulk tank stations and 54 per cent of assemblers' sales were accounted for by these establishments. Only 15 per cent of the sales of petroleum bulk tank stations and 20 per cent of the sales of assemblers were made by establishments with sales of $1,000,000 and over.

According to kind-of-business classifications, wholesalers proper with sales of $1,000,000 and over had 75 per cent of the total sales for the coal and coke trade, 79 per cent for the farm products (raw materials) trade, 70 per cent for the forest products (except lumber) trade, and 87 per cent for the metals and metal work trade.

Multiple Organizations in Wholesale Trade

Of the 24,758 establishments in wholesale trade, 9,558 were maintained by organizations which operated more than one establishment. These establishments belonging to multiple-unit organizations formed 39 per cent of the total number of establishments and handled 51 per cent of the total wholesale trade.

For the wholesalers proper group, single-unit companies handled 58 per cent of the total sales, those establishments operated by two-unit firms handled 10 per cent, while other multiple classes obtained the following proportions of the total business: 3-5 units, 14 per cent; 6-25 units, 15 per cent; over 25 units, 13 per cent.

In the petroleum bulk tank stations and assemblers of primary products groups, however, organizations operating more than 25 branches were more important, establishments in this class accounting for 54 per cent and 52 per cent, respectively, of the total sales of their groups. On the other hand, multiple organizations were less important among agents and brokers. Only 18 per cent of the business done by this group was handled by other than single-unit establishments.

A comparison of the importance of establishments operated by multiple organizations in the various economic areas of Canada indicates that this type forms a considerably higher proportion of the total number of establishments (61 per cent) and is responsible for a substantially larger percentage of the total sales in the Prairie Provinces than elsewhere in Canada. Line elevators and petroleum bulk tank stations are the two classifications contributing largely to this result. Multiple organizations were least important in the province of Quebec where establishments belonging to this type constituted only 16 per cent of all establishments and made 45 per cent of the total sales.

A special tabulation of multiple-unit organizations on the basis of firms rather than establishments shows the number of firms operating in each classification as well as the number of units. These data are presented for wholesalers proper only.

The following table, based on firms rather than on individual establishments, shows the distribution of multiple firms in the wholesalers proper group by amount of annual sales. The total number of establishments and sales in this table differ slightly from the figures shown in Table 15 in the main body of this volume due to the fact that for the text table, classification has been on the basis of the firm as a whole rather than for each establishment.

Table VII shows the importance of multiple organizations in the various kind-of-business classifications for wholesalers proper. Those trades in which organizations operating more than one establishment do 60 per cent or more of the business are the chemicals (industrial), coal and coke, groceries (general line), farm machinery and equipment, industrial machinery, equipment and supplies, iron and steel, wrapping or coarse paper and its products, plumbing and heating equipment and supplies, and optical goods.

Employees of agents and brokers received higher average salaries than did those of other types of wholesalers. Table X shows the number of employees, salaries and wages, and average salary per employee for the six major types of operation.

Wholesale merchants are the largest employers of labour in the wholesale field. There were 43,570 male and 10,330 female workers in this type, more than 45 per cent of all employees in wholesale trade. Next in order of importance as employers were import merchants with 10,512 male and 3,514 female employees followed by manufacturers' sales branches (with stocks) with 10,537 male and 2,353 female employees. District and general sales offices of manufacturers employed 4,744 male and 1,632 female workers and line elevators, 5,631 male and 55 female employees. Bulk tank stations of the various types employed 4,734 males and 234 females.

A tabulation of wholesale establishments according to number of employees revealed that, of the 24,758 establishments, 7,053 or 28 per cent were operated by the proprietors alone without the help of paid employees. These establishments did 5 per cent of the total business of wholesalers. Another 31 per cent of the wholesale establishments had only one employee and accounted for 8 per cent of the total sales. Nineteen per cent of all establishments had from 2 to 4 employees, 10 per cent had 5 to 9 employees, 6 per cent had from 10 to 19 employees, while 4 per cent had 20 to 49. Establishments with from 50 to 99 employees constituted 1 per cent of the total number and those with over 100 employees, less than one-half of one per cent. These larger establishments with 100 employees or more accounted for 9 per cent of the total sales and employed 13 per cent of all employees in wholesale trade.

Wholesalers proper, performing as they do more functions than do other types of wholesalers, generally require the services of a larger number of employees. This is evidenced by the fact that only 37 per cent of all wholesalers proper had less than two employees, while 73 per cent of all other types fell within this class.

Operating Expenses in Wholesale Trade

As the operating expenses of wholesale establishments are largely dependent upon the extent of services performed, figures on operating costs are presented for each type of wholesale establishment and for selected trades within each type.

Operating expenses for wholesale establishments were reported under the following headings: (a) salaries, wages and commissions of employees; (b) rent; (c) all other operating expenses (including taxes other than income taxes, insurance, light, heat, delivery, supplies). In the tables of this report, however, the only expense item shown separately is the payroll of employees. All wholesale establishments did not report full particulars on operating expenses. The tables, therefore, include data for only those firms which provided complete information on operating costs. The operating expense ratios shown in the tables should be considered as representative only when the sales of establishments reporting expenses form a high proportion of the total sales of all establishments in the particular classification. It should be noted also that no allowance has been made in the operating expense figures for the remuneration of proprietors who are actively engaged in unincorporated businesses.

Among wholesalers proper, drop shippers handling chiefly primary products in earload lots and export merchants had the lowest operating expenses. Operating expenses of drop shippers and desk jobbers were 3.01 per cent of their sales volume while export merchants' expenses formed 3.48 per cent of sales. The other types of wholesalers proper had operating expense ratios of 10.24 per cent for voluntary group wholesalers, 11.28 for wholesale merchants, 11.72 for importers, and 12.32 for wagon distributors, while mail order wholesalers reported operating expenses amounting to 29.96 per cent of total sales. For wholesale merchants, these costs were split almost equally between payroll and other expenses, but for all other types, "other expenses" formed more than half of the total.

Agents and brokers had considerably lower operating costs, a condition which reflects the more limited functions performed by these types of wholesalers. Operating expenses of brokers and of export agents and brokers amounted to less than one per cent of the volume of business handled, while purchasing agents had operating expenses of 1.21 per cent of sales. Commission merchants, manufacturers' agents, auction companies, and import agents and brokers were closely grouped with operating expense ratios varying between 2.72 and 3.30 per cent of sales. Selling agents, who usually take over the marketing of an entire product or group of products of a manufacturer, had a higher operating expense ratio of 4.76 per cent.

With two exceptions, the various types of assemblers of primary products differed only slightly in the ratio of their operating expenses to sales. Cooperative marketing associations, country buyers of primary products, independent elevators, and city buyers of primary products had operating expenses ranging between the narrow limits of 6.39 and 6.86 per cent of sales. Operating expenses of cooperative sales agencies were 3.55 per cent of sales, while those reported by packers and shippers amounted to 19.67 per cent of sales, reflecting the larger labour force required to pack the goods as well as the additional supplies and storage facilities required.

Among wholesale merchants, the percentage of operating expenses to sales for the different trades varied from a low of 4.91 per cent to a high of 40.31 per cent. Wholesalers handling staple goods such as tobacco, groceries, and food products tended to have the lower operating expense ratios. Low operating costs were also reported by those trades which deal in bulk commodities such as pulpwood, coal and coke, and metals and metal work. Kinds of business in which high operating expenses were reported were optical goods, rubber goods (general line), automotive equipment, photographic and motion picture equipment, books, newspapers and periodicals, jewellery, leather and leather goods, and furniture and house furnishings.

Operating expenses are also shown for selected kind-of-business classifications by amount of annual sales.

Distribution of Sales by Customer Class

Wholesalers were asked to break down their total sales under the following headings:

- (1) sales to retailers for resale
- (2) sales to industrial, commercial, professional and institutional users (manufacturers, railroads, government bodies, contractors, public utilities, etc.)

- (3) sales to other wholesalers or jobbers
- (4) sales to household consumers
- (5) sales made to buyers in foreign countries (including sales to foreign branches of Canadian firms).

The distribution of wholesalers' sales by type of customer varied considerably according to type of operation and according to kind of business within each type. Wholesalers proper did the largest proportion of their business with retailers, while the major portion of the sales of manufacturers' sales branches went to industrial and other large users. The largest proportion of the business of agents and brokers consisted of sales to wholesalers or jobbers, although a considerable percentage went to industrial and other large users.

Petroleum bulk tank stations possess certain characteristics not common to other types insofar as customer classification of sales is concerned and the distribution of their sales is, therefore, presented separately. The largest volume of sales of this group was made to retailers but the 10 per cent of sales made direct to farmers and other primary producers was a distinguishing feature.

Among wholesalers proper, the trades which showed the greatest proportion of sales directly to retailers were those dealing in consumer goods such as dry goods, furniture, general merchandise, groceries, jewellery. On the other hand, among the kinds of business in which this medium of distribution was the least important were those handling industrial goods such as machinery and metals. These trades sold the major portion of their volume to industrial users. Farm products, forest products, and paper were other trades in which sales to retailers formed only a small proportion of the total. Here the largest percentage consisted of export sales. Trades in which wholesalers proper transacted a considerable proportion of their business with other wholesalers and jobbers were farm products, food products (except groceries), and tobacco and tobacco products.

The group showing the largest proportion of wholesalers' sales transacted at retail prices, or with household consumers, was the automotive trade, where the ratio stood at 9.8 per cent. The coal and coke, farm supplies, and hardware groups were the only other trades which reported more than 5 per cent of sales made direct to consumers.

Over 50 per cent of all sales made by manufacturers' sales branches were to industrial and other large users. The proportion to this type of purchaser was substantially greater, however, for branches of manufacturers of dry goods and apparel, electrical goods, farm supplies, leather and leather goods, and metals and metal work. The wholesaler retained his importance in the distributive system for certain lines of merchandise even though the manufacturer had established sales branches. In the tobacco and tobacco products trade, 74 per cent of the sales of manufacturers' sales branches went to wholesalers or jobbers. The wholesaler was also the most important type of purchaser for manufacturers maintaining sales branches in the plumbing and heating trade, while a substantial proportion of the business of sales branches of manufacturers of lumber and building materials, hardware, groceries and food specialties, and furniture was done with other wholesalers or jobbers. Direct sales to retailers by manufacturers' sales branches constituted major proportions of the sales in the automotive, food products (except groceries), furniture, jewellery, and books trades.

"Other wholesalers and jobbers" provided the most important channel of distribution for sales of agents and brokers generally. This medium was more important in certain trades than in others. Agents in the automotive, farm supplies, food products (except groceries), and tobacco and tobacco products trades used wholesalers and jobbers as the means of distribution for over 70 per cent of their sales. The industrial or other large user constituted the chief type of buyer from agents in the leather and leather goods, machinery, equipment and supplies trade, metals and metal work trade, paper and paper products trade, and textiles and textile materials (other than dry goods and cordage and twine). Agents as a rule do not deal directly with retailers, the total sales to this class amounting to only 15 per cent of all sales of agents and brokers. In certain lines, however, retailers are the most important type of purchaser. These are jewellery, furniture, amusement and sporting goods, and dry goods and apparel. Substantial proportions of the total sales of the automotive, chemical and allied products, and coal and coke groups were also made directly to retailers.

The two major kind-of-business classifications into which assemblers of primary products have been grouped showed a somewhat different distribution of sales according to type of customers. Assemblers in the farm products (raw materials) group sold 66 per cent of their total volume to industrial and other large users and 23 per cent to other wholesalers. On the other hand, the major proportion, or 57 per cent, of the business of assemblers in the food products (except groceries) trade was transacted with other wholesalers, with less than 9 per cent going to industrial and other large users.

Wholesale Trade by Form of Ownership

Table 13 shows wholesalers classified according to form of ownership, that is whether an individual proprietorship, a partnership, an incorporated company, a cooperative association or some other form. Of the 24,758 wholesalers of all types in Canada, 12,157 or slightly less than half were of the corporate form of ownership. These, however, accounted for 78 per cent of the total volume of business. The next largest single form of ownership was the individual proprietorship of which there were 10,815 and which transacted 15 per cent of the sales of all wholesalers. Partnerships numbered 1,394 and handled 4 per cent of total sales, while the 366 cooperative associations were responsible for 3 per cent of the total wholesale sales.

There was some variation in the distribution of establishments and sales between the various forms of organization according to types of operation. Almost 100 per cent of the sales of manufacturers' sales branches was transacted by corporations. Agents and brokers showed a lesser proportion handled by this form of ownership, the business being shared with individual proprietorships. Sales of assemblers of primary products were made largely by the corporate form of business with cooperative associations handling a fairly large proportion of the sales of this type.

There were only slight variations between the provinces in the proportion of sales made by the different forms of ownership. Corporations in Quebec handled a larger share of the total sales for that province than they did in any of the other economic areas. They were least important in volume of business in the Prairie Provinces, although the number of establishments so classified in this region was 6,675. This figure includes the individual elevators of the line elevator companies which numbered 5,265 so that when this fact is considered, the importance of the corporate form of ownership in other kinds of business in the Prairie Provinces is considerably less than in the other provinces. Cooperative associations obtained a larger proportion of the total volume of business in the western provinces than in the east.

Continuity of Ownership in Wholesale Trade

Wholesale establishments, on the whole, display greater longevity than retail establishments. The actual rate of mortality among retail and wholesale firms cannot be determined from the census records as the information available relates only to the age of establishments which were in operation in 1941. The number of businesses which may have been discontinued or which may have changed hands at any time prior to 1941 is not known. It is significant, however, that of the retail stores in operation during 1941, 62 per cent had been in business prior to 1938 while of the wholesale establishments operating during the same year, 74 per cent had been in business for five years or more.

Taken by provinces, the Maritimes and the Prairies show proportionately fewer wholesale businesses established between 1930 and 1941. On the other hand, these regions recorded relatively higher numbers of businesses established during the period 1910-1929 than did the other regions. The Maritime Provinces had the largest percentage of wholesale establishments which had been under the same ownership since prior to 1910.

Cash and Credit Sales

One of the functions of wholesalers is the financing of distribution by the extension of credit to purchasers who might be retailers, industrial or commercial users, or other wholesalers. This function is not an essential feature of wholesaling in its broader concept and many types of middlemen do not provide credit facilities. The table dealing with credit sales, therefore, is based on the establishments which have been classed as wholesalers proper and which normally assume the financial risks involved in the extension of credit. Not all firms were able to provide information on credit sales, but 64 per cent of all establishments responsible for 73 per cent of the sales in the wholesalers proper group did report the amount of business which they transacted on a credit basis.

Credit sales were taken as all sales not cash in hand and, therefore, include transactions on credit for brief periods of from one to thirty days as well as longer extensions of credit. According to returns submitted, 82 per cent of the sales of wholesalers proper were made on a credit basis.

According to kinds of business, there were variations in the extent of credit business in different lines but very few trades did more than forty per cent of their business on a strictly cash basis. The percentage of credit sales was much lower in the farm products group than in any other kind of business.

Accounts Receivable

Not all firms reported the amount of customers' accounts outstanding on their books at the end of the year 1941. The amounts shown in the tables represent only the accounts outstanding of those firms which did report this item. For wholesalers proper, customers' accounts outstanding at the end of 1941 amounted to $242,121,600 or 10 per cent of the total sales of this group during the year. Agents and brokers do not generally provide credit facilities so that the accounts outstanding formed a much smaller proportion of the total sales of this group at 1.4 per cent. Assemblers operating in the first stage of distribution of primary products do a larger proportion of their business on a cash basis and as a result also had a small percentage of their total sales, viz. 1.7 per cent, as accounts outstanding at the end of the year.

This item was less uniformly reported by manufacturers' sales branches and bulk tank stations and while these two types reported accounts outstanding of 9.6 per cent and 9.1 per cent of annual sales respectively, it is quite probable that these ratios underestimate the actual extent of the credit accounts outstanding at the end of the census year.

Commodity Sales

In addition to securing the total net sales of each establishment, firms were asked to give a breakdown of their sales by commodities. Not all firms were able to provide this information so that it was not possible to secure a complete breakdown of total net sales on a commodity basis. Figures are shown for each trade for which a sufficient number of commodity sales reports were received and the extent to which the sales of each group have been broken down by commodities has been indicated under the term "commodity coverage" before the figures for each kind of business.

The distribution of sales by commodity classes is presented for wholesalers proper only. No attempt has been made to determine the total value of particular commodities handled by all types of wholesalers. Since different types and kinds of wholesalers share in a variety of intermediate transactions as well as making sales to final buyers in Canada and to foreign purchasers, there is a great deal of duplication in the gross value of wholesale sales by all types and kinds of business. Even among wholesalers proper, there is a certain amount of business transacted between large wholesalers and smaller wholesalers or jobbers as well as between one kind of business and another. No totals therefore have been compiled for individual commodities. The commodity table shows the main items handled by each trade, the number of wholesalers in that trade which handle each commodity and the proportion which each commodity forms of the total sales of that kind-of-business classification. A detailed description of the commodity table appears in the section "Analysis of Sales by Commodities" immediately preceding Table 19.

Manufacturing Activities of Wholesalers Proper

Certain firms, which for the purpose of the Census have been classified as wholesale establishments, are also engaged in manufacturing or processing some of the commodities which they sell. As has been pointed out in a preceding section, "Overlapping Agencies", the proportion of sales of such goods must be less than fifty per cent of the total sales before a firm would be classified as a wholesaler.

Of the 9,417 wholesalers proper, 561 reported that they did some manufacturing on their own premises. The sales of goods manufactured by these firms amounted to $48,816,600 during 1941, or 2.1 per cent of the total sales of all wholesalers proper.

The following table shows the number of wholesalers proper in selected kinds of business which did some manufacturing, the volume of sales of goods manufactured by these wholesalers, and the proportion which sales of these goods formed of the total sales of the group. Manufacturing activities were more prevalent in certain trades than in others. Those in which the sales of goods manufactured in the establishment formed more than 10 per cent of the total sales of all goods were: hay, grain and feed; glass; other industrial machinery, equipment and supplies; surgical, medical and hospital equipment and supplies; other professional equipment and supplies; heating equipment and supplies; plumbing and heating equipment and supplies (general line); oils, greases and waxes; and optical goods. Substantial volumes of manufacturing were also reported in the dry goods, groceries (general line), and lumber trades but in these cases the sales of goods manufactured by the wholesalers formed less than 10 per cent of the total sales.

INTRODUCTION

La présente section traite des statistiques du commerce de gros en 1941, obtenues en rapport avec le recensement des établissements de commerce et de service, entreprise intégrante du huitième recensement décennal. C'est le deuxième recensement complet effectué au Canada sur la distribution des marchandises. Le recensement antérieur de ce genre portait sur les affaires de 1930 et a été effectué en marge du recensement décennal de 1931. Il y a donc un intervalle de onze ans entre les deux périodes.

Ce rapport a été préparé d'après des données statistiques obtenues par la poste de tous les établissements de commerce de gros au Canada. La liste d'adresses employée avait été au préalable dressée par les énumérateurs du recensement de la population qui avaient été chargés de relever les noms et adresses de tous les établissements commerciaux tombant sous le recensement des établissements de commerce et de service et situés dans leurs régions respectives d'énumération. Ces listes ont été complétées et vérifiées à l'aide de diverses autres sources, particulièrement les dossiers des établissements possédant un permis de la Commission des prix et du commerce en temps de guerre.

Les statistiques du commerce de gros présentées ici indiquent le nombre d'établissements, les ventes annuelles, le nombre moyen d'employés, le bordereau de paye annuel, les inventaires à la fin de l'année et les comptes de clients à recevoir. Un résumé des dépenses d'exploitation des différents genres d'établissements de commerce de gros est aussi donné. D'autres tableaux indiquent la répartition des ventes de gros par catégories de clients et par groupes de produits.

Les tableaux ont été disposés de façon à permettre le classement des établissements de gros d'après diverses bases afin d'illustrer divers aspects et caractéristiques de ce domaine. Un classement selon le genre d'opération groupe les établissements de gros selon leurs fonctions. L'autre groupement principal est fait selon le genre de commerce, la base du classement dans ce cas étant la principale denrée ou les principaux groupes de denrées. D'autres tableaux classent les établissements de gros selon le mode légal de propriété, le chiffre d'affaires, le nombre d'unités d'écoulement et la date d'entrée en possession du propriétaire actuel.

Les tableaux varient dans leurs détails suivant les différentes régions géographiques. L'analyse la plus détaillée possible est donnée pour l'ensemble du Canada. Lorsque des renseignements ont été donnés pour les provinces, ou pour les cinq régions économiques en lesquelles le pays peut être divisé, il a été nécessaire de recourir à des données moins détaillées. Des résultats aussi détaillés que possible sont donnés pour chaque cité incorporée de 30,000 âmes ou plus, tandis que des statistiques sommaires sont présentées pour chaque comté ou division de recensement et pour tout endroit incorporé de 5,000 âmes ou plus.

PORTÉE DU RECENSEMENT DES ÉTABLISSEMENTS DE GROS

Le commerce de détail est une activité économique bien définie qui représente le stage final de la distribution des denrées aux consommateurs. De plus, bien qu'il existe des variations dans le degré de service offert, les fonctions de la plupart des détaillants sont fondamentalement semblables en ce qu'ils font affaires pour leur propre compte avec le consommateur ultime des produits vendus. La valeur totale du commerce de détail est donc un chiffre important qui indique la somme totale des dépenses du consommateur ultime en marchandises pour la satisfaction de ses besoins personnels.

Dans le domaine du gros, les limites sont beaucoup moins clairement définies. Dans son sens le plus restreint, le commerce de gros pourrait ne comprendre que les activités des marchands de gros qui achètent de producteurs primaires, de manufacturiers ou d'autres sources, et qui vendent aux établissements de détail pour revente aux consommateurs. Par contre, le concept de commerce de gros pourrait être étendu à toutes les opérations commerciales excepté celles qui touchent le dernier stage de la distribution au consommateur ultime. Pour les fins du recensement des établissements de commerce et de service, un moyen terme entre ces deux extrêmes a été adopté. Le commerce de gros comprend donc non seulement les marchands de gros qui agissent comme intermédiaires entre producteurs et marchands de détail, mais aussi les agents, courtiers, commissionnaires et rassembleurs de produits primaires, que ceux-ci soient des acheteurs indépendants, des coopératives ou des compagnies d'éleveurs en chaîne. Les manufactures font rapport au recensement annuel de l'industrie du Bureau et elles sont donc exclues du recensement des établissements de commerce et de service bien que de façon générale elles vendent des marchandises en gros et qu'elles forment ainsi partie du domaine de gros considéré dans son sens le plus large. Cependant, sont inclus dans la section du commerce de gros les succursales et les bureaux de ventes maintenus par les manufacturiers en dehors de leurs usines pour vendre leurs produits. Les dépôts d'huile maintenus par des distributeurs en gros de produits pétroliers sont aussi compris comme une catégorie distincte du recensement du commerce de gros. Les établissements se spécialisant dans la vente d'outillage et de fournitures à des consommateurs industriels, commerciaux ou professionnels sont considérés comme appartenant au commerce de gros plutôt qu'à celui de détail. Les compagnies de la Couronne engagées principalement dans la distribution des marchandises, les entrepôts de distribution, et les échanges de films maintenus pour la distribution de films aux cinémas, sont aussi englobés dans les statistiques du commerce de gros. Une partie subséquente de ce résumé, sous l'en-tête "Méthodes de classification", donne des descriptions plus détaillées des divers genres d'établissements compris dans le recensement du commerce de gros.

DOUBLE EMPLOI

Un nombre considérable d'établissements commerciaux remplissent des fonctions qui chevauchent les grands groupements ou catégories entre lesquels peut être divisée l'activité économique. Bien que la valeur des transactions directes entre les grossistes et consommateurs soit relativement peu considérable, un nombre néanmoins appréciable d'établissements de gros déclarent faire du commerce de détail. Ceci est particulièrement le cas de certains genres de commerce comme les vendeurs d'outillage automoteur, d'articles pour la ferme, de quincaillerie, d'appareils électriques, de charbon et bois d'œuvre et de matériaux de construction. Pour certaines fins il serait avantageux de subdiviser le chiffre d'affaires total de ces établissements et de répartir les proportions de ventes de gros et de ventes de détail dans les sections respectives du recensement des établissements de commerce. Des considérations d'ordre pratique rendent cependant cette méthode impossible de sorte qu'il est nécessaire d'attacher chaque établissement dans sa totalité à une phase ou une autre du recensement. Les établissements qui font surtout le commerce de gros sont assignés au recensement du commerce de gros, tandis que ceux qui s'occupent surtout du détail, bien que faisant certaines transactions en gros, sont classés comme établissements de détail.

Certaines compagnies de magasins en chaîne maintiennent des entrepôts qui remplissent certaines fonctions de gros en ce que des marchandises sont achetées en vrac de manufacturiers ou autres fournisseurs pour distribution en plus petites quantités à leurs propres magasins de détail. Les statistiques sur les opérations des magasins de détail sont comprises dans la section du détail du recensement. Les détails sur les opérations des entrepôts de magasins en chaîne ne sont pas compris dans les tableaux réguliers des sections qui traitent du commerce de détail et du commerce de gros mais sont présentés dans un appendice au volume X du rapport du recensement de 1941 traitant des magasins en chaîne.

Tous les établissements engagés dans la fabrication ou le conditionnement font rapport annuellement à la Division du recensement de l'industrie du Bureau. Certains établissements engagés dans la fabrication agissent aussi comme distributeurs en gros de produits fabriqués par d'autres. En général ces établissements ne sont compris dans la section du commerce de gros du recensement que lorsque leurs ventes de marchandises achetées dépassent les ventes de marchandises fabriquées par eux-mêmes. Dans ces cas le volume global d'affaires, y compris les ventes de marchandises achetées et de marchandises fabriquées, entre dans le recensement du commerce de gros. Mais les chiffres sur l'emploi et la rémunération de ces établissements, tels que relevés pour le recensement du commerce de gros, sont distincts de ceux qui s'appliquent aux activités manufacturières et qui sont déclarés dans le rapport annuel du recensement de l'industrie. Les établissements engagés et dans la fabrication et dans la distribution de marchandises produites par d'autres, mais dont les ventes de marchandises achetées forment moins de la moitié du chiffre annuel d'affaires sont, en général, exclus tout à fait du recensement du commerce de gros. Il y a exception à cette règle dans le cas de quelques très grands établissements tenant le double rôle de manufacturier et de distributeur en gros. Dans de tels cas, un rapport séparé est exigé de ces établissements sur leur commerce de distributeur en gros, bien que leurs ventes de marchandises achetées forment moins de la moitié de leur chiffre annuel d'affaires.

HISTORIQUE DU RECENSEMENT DES ÉTABLISSEMENTS DE COMMERCE ET DE SERVICE

Un premier essai de recensement de la distribution connu sous le nom de "recensement des établissements commerciaux" a été fait au Canada au cours des années 1921 à 1924 en marge du recensement de la population de 1921. Les noms et adresses des maisons de commerce avaient été recueillis par les énumérateurs de recensement, et des questionnaires ont été par la suite envoyés par la poste à toutes les firmes ainsi cataloguées. La somme de travail requise pour les autres parties du recensement fit que les questionnaires ne purent être distribués avant 1924. A cette date, un bon nombre des maisons enregistrées lors du recensement étaient fermées. De plus, les restrictions imposées quant au personnel au cours du resserrement économique de 1924-1925, ne permettaient pas de talonner efficacement les maisons qui ne fournissaient pas le rapport demandé. En conséquence, ce recensement des établissements commerciaux fut incomplet, tout en établissant une limite plus basse au volume du commerce domestique.

Le deuxième recensement de la distribution, connu sous le nom de recensement des établissements de commerce et de service, faisait partie du recensement décennal de 1931. Les énumérateurs de recensement de la population ont encore une fois fait des listes d'adresses des maisons d'affaires, qui comprenaient cette fois-ci non seulement les maisons de commerce de détail et de gros mais aussi certains genres de commerce offrant plutôt des services que des marchandises. Ces listes ont été vérifiées pour être complétées d'après les répertoires du commerce et d'autres sources et des questionnaires ont été envoyés vers la fin de l'été et le commencement de l'automne demandant des détails sur le commerce effectué en 1930. A peu près cinquante pour cent des questionnaires de recensement ont été retournés dans l'espace de temps stipulé par les instructions mais un travail considérable, soit par correspondance ou par sollicitation personnelle, a été requis afin d'obtenir le reste. Les données de ce recensement forment les volumes X et XI du rapport du recensement, 1931, et constituent le premier travail de grande envergure contenant des données statistiques descriptives de la structure du commerce de gros et de détail au Canada.

Des relevés annuels du commerce de détail et de gros basés sur l'échantillonnage ont été inaugurés tôt après que le recensement de 1930 eut été complété et ont été poursuivis jusqu'en 1941. Ceux-ci, avec des relevés mensuels basés sur des rapports d'un nombre plus restreint de maisons, ont servi à fournir une indication de la tendance des ventes de gros et de détail au cours des années entre les deux recensements. Mais les données du deuxième recensement complet des établissements de commerce et de service fait en marge du huitième recensement décennal en 1941, et se rapportant au commerce effectué au cours de l'année de recensement, fournissent la première occasion d'examiner les développements dans l'organisation du commerce du pays au cours de la période de onze ans de 1930 à 1941.

MÉTHODE DE RECENSEMENT

Le recensement des établissements de commerce et de service pour 1941 a été fait par la poste; la liste d'adresses employée a été préparée par les énumérateurs de la population qui avaient été chargés de prendre les noms, adresses et certains autres détails sur chaque établissement de commerce tombant sous le recensement et situé dans leur district respectif d'énumération. Le travail préliminaire sur le recensement a été commencé en 1940 alors que des décisions ont été prises relativement à la portée générale du travail et le genre de renseignements à recueillir. Ces décisions ont été prises, en partie à la lumière de l'expérience acquise lors du recensement de 1930 et en partie à la suite de propositions et demandes de ceux que ces résultats intéressent. Des demandes de renseignements ont été envoyées à des firmes représentatives des divers commerces, afin de s'assurer que les questions demandées étaient autant que possible conformes aux procédés généraux de comptabilité. Des questionnaires ont été esquissés et, après de soigneuses révisions, ont été rédigés dans leur forme définitive. Sept sortes de questionnaires ont été utilisés pour les diverses branches de commerce de détail et cinq pour les établissements de gros. Un questionnaire spécial a été utilisé pour les hôtels et un autre pour les compagnies de financement. En plus, il y avait des formules spéciales pour les magasins en chaîne et autres organisations à succursales qui ont facilité à ces firmes la préparation de l'information requise.

Lorsque les listes d'adresses des maisons d'affaires telles que préparées par les énumérateurs de recensement ont été reçues au Bureau, elles furent compilées et classées par les membres du personnel permanent. Ceci a été fait dans le but d'éviter les entrées inutiles, d'indiquer à côté de chaque entrée la sorte de questionnaire à envoyer et d'inscrire des annotations aux entrées de certains genres de commerce où l'expérience du précédent recensement avait montré que des instructions spéciales étaient nécessaires. Un numéro de renvoi a été inscrit à côté de chaque entrée conformément à un système de numéros de code précédemment préparé, ces numéros servant à désigner la province, le comté ou district de recensement et la cité ou ville de même que l'établissement énuméré en particulier.

Les listes d'adresses ont ensuite été complètement portées sur des fiches d'index par le personnel de recensement, chaque fiche contenant le numéro de référence, le nom, l'adresse et certaines autres informations descriptives indiquées sur la liste soit par l'énumérateur de recensement ou le personnel vérificateur. Ces fiches d'index qui devaient servir de fiches de référence postale ont ensuite été assorties en divers groupes selon la sorte de questionnaire à envoyer. On a accordé une attention spéciale aux cartes de référence postale représentant des unités de chaîne ou autres organisations à succursales et aux cartes correspondant à des entrées à côté desquelles il y avait des annotations indiquant que des instructions particulières sont nécessaires.

Afin de s'assurer qu'elles sont exactes les listes d'adresses des énumérateurs ont été comparées à un index des maisons d'affaires préparé par la Division des licences de la Commission des prix et du commerce en temps de guerre. Un nombre considérable d'autres noms représentant surtout des établissements de moindre importance a été ainsi obtenu.

Des questionnaires appropriés ont été adressés à la main et ceux-ci, accompagnés d'une lettre annexe, ont été insérés dans des enveloppes à fenêtre. La correspondance montante a été retenue jusqu'à la fin de février 1942 alors qu'elle a été envoyée; un mois a été accordé pour remplir et retourner les questionnaires. Presque tous les rapports ont été obtenus par la poste. Pour les dernières phases du travail, on eut recours à des énumérateurs ambulants pour obtenir des rapports d'environ trois mille firmes sur un total de plus de deux cent mille.

Lorsque les rapports parvenaient au Bureau ils étaient examinés afin de s'assurer que les renseignements fournis étaient complets. Ils étaient ensuite classifiés, d'abord selon qu'ils appartenaient au groupe de gros ou de détail et, ensuite, selon le genre de commerce d'après un système de classification précédemment adopté.

Pour les calculs provisoires du recensement du commerce de gros, les données obtenues des divers établissements qui ont fait rapport sont transportées sur des cartes statistiques appropriées en même temps qu'un chiffre prédéterminé pour le genre de commerce et le mode d'opération. Ces cartes sont triées à la main tel que requis et les totaux de chaque item sont calculés à la machine. Pour les rapports définitifs du recensement du commerce de gros, des cartes Hollerith contenant 80 colonnes sont poinçonnées et cataloguées par la section centrale de tabulation mécanique du Bureau. Ces calculs mécaniques sont complétés par l'autres tableaux donnant la distribution des ventes par genre d'acheteurs et les ventes par produit. Ces calculs sont faits à la main à même les questionnaires et à l'aide d'additionneuses.

FONCTIONS DES ÉTABLISSEMENTS DE GROS.

Les fonctions remplies par les établissements de gros diffèrent beaucoup selon les divers types de grossistes. Il n'est donc pas possible de relever un ensemble de fonctions qui puisse s'appliquer à tous les types. Dans le système normal de distribution à trois participants—fabricant ou producteur, grossiste et détaillant—le marchand en gros figurait comme partie intégrante. Par suite des changements survenus dans le système de distribution, le travail peut se répartir parmi des types de grossistes plus spécialisés ou, encore, être entrepris par le fabricant ou le détaillant. Néanmoins, les fonctions essentielles de la distribution en gros doivent être exercées, quel que soit le rouage utilisé. Ces fonctions peuvent se grouper sous les rubriques suivantes:

- a) Vente
- b) Assemblément
- c) Transport
- d) Entreposage
- e) Financement

La plus importante des opérations de vente accomplies par le grossiste consiste à établir et à maintenir un contact effectif entre acheteurs et vendeurs, dans le cas du grossiste régulier entre le fabricant et l'assemblé, d'une part, et le détaillant d'autre part. La tâche se résume essentiellement à obtenir des renseignements concernant les débouchés ainsi que les clients possibles, et de faire connaître aux clients les catégories, les quantités, les qualités et les prix des denrées offertes en vente. Dans le cas de produits de vente courante, la somme d'efforts consacrés à l'obtention ou à la distribution de renseignements pourra être minime, mais un des principaux aspects des opérations des établissements de gros réside dans l'introduction de nouvelles marques de marchandises, tâche qui nécessite des efforts considérables. Les grossistes coopèrent en outre avec les fabricants dans l'organisation de campagnes spéciales de vente et dans l'expansion des marchés. Afin qu'un contact effectif puisse être maintenu entre acheteurs et vendeurs, il est habituellement nécessaire que les représentants de l'établissement de gros fassent des visites régulières aux détaillants de la région qui leur est confiée, et que les acheteurs se tiennent étroitement en contact avec les fournisseurs de denrées.

La deuxième série de fonctions que remplit le grossiste tombe sous la rubrique de l'assemblément et comporte, en certains cas, le triage, le classement, l'emballage et la préparation des denrées pour la vente. Bien que les ventes croissantes de marchandises préalablement mises en paquets et de denrées spécialement préparées aient amené l'introduction des méthodes susdites dans la production de plusieurs articles, il existe encore de nombreux produits que le grossiste doit assembler lui-même. Les produits importés, tels que le thé, sont souvent triés et emballés par le grossiste, et dans plusieurs centres, on achète en vrac les produits naturels locaux pour en faire le triage et le classement avant de les vendre au détaillant. Même lorsque cette préparation n'est pas indispensable, le grossiste doit acheter en quantités passablement fortes et trier les articles afin de remplir les commandes particulières des détaillants. Pour remplir cette fonction de façon satisfaisante, le grossiste doit acheter en anticipation des ventes et garder des stocks complets de certains genres de marchandises susceptibles d'être en demande.

La troisième catégorie de services que rend le grossiste se rapporte au transport de la denrée du producteur au détaillant. Le grossiste doit tout d'abord faire transporter les marchandises à son propre entrepôt, puis les faire livrer à ses clients. D'ordinaire, c'est le grossiste qui se charge des livraisons aux détaillants locaux; tandis que les expéditions à des clients éloignés sont confiées aux compagnies de transport.

Il y a un rapport étroit entre les services d'entreposage rendus par les grossistes et la fonction d'assemblément déjà mentionnée. Il faut, en effet, réserver aux marchandises de l'espace dans l'entrepôt et assurer leur protection entre l'époque de l'achat et celle de la vente.

En dernier lieu, le grossiste doit assumer une part considérable du financement des produits finis, risquer de voir les stocks se démoder, et subir les conséquences du choix injudicieux, de la surabondance des stocks et des fluctuations de prix. Ces risques peuvent se grouper sous la rubrique "frais de stockage". Le grossiste peut, naturellement, garder des stocks financés par un manufacturier ou à l'aide de prêts consentis par une banque. Il doit aussi, en plusieurs cas, faciliter le crédit à ses clients, que ces derniers soient des marchands de détail ou les consommateurs ultimes des produits vendus.

La mesure dans laquelle sont exercées les fonctions ci-dessus énumérées varie selon le genre de commerce, le genre de distributeur, la clientèle desservie et les sources d'approvisionnement. Une étude de l'évolution du commerce de gros au Canada démontre que le système de distribution subit des modifications et une adaption continuelles, correspondant aux changements qui surviennent dans la production et la distribution en détail. L'entrée en scène des chaînes de magasins a amené la création d'un nouveau genre d'établissement de gros, qui est l'entrepôt de magasins en chaîne, et a nécessité l'adoption de nouvelles méthodes de vente en gros destinées à permettre aux magasins indépendants de soutenir la concurrence des magasins en chaîne. La formation de chaînes de détaillants indépendants desservies par des marchands en gros et l'addition de comptoirs pour la vente au comptant sans livraison dans certains établissements de gros peuvent être attribuées en majeure partie à l'apparition des magasins en chaîne.

MÉTHODES DE CLASSEMENT

Suivant une pratique établie lors du recensement antérieur pour 1930, un rapport séparé a été exigé de chaque établissement de gros faisant affaire au Canada en 1941, même si cet établissement était une succursale ou un bureau de vente d'un organisme plus vaste. L'établissement pouvait être une maison de gros régulière, un dépôt d'huile faisant la distribution des produits du pétrole, un éleveur à grain situé sur une voie d'évitement de chemin de fer dans une région rurale, un bureau, ou, parfois, une partie de bureau partagé avec d'autres commerces. Tout endroit d'affaires distinct déclaré comme étant engagé principalement dans le commerce de gros est traité comme un établissement distinct dans les résultats du recensement.

La réunion des statistiques sur le commerce de gros, par établissement plutôt que par compagnie, a permis le calcul des résultats d'après la situation géographique des établissements. De toute évidence, cette méthode ne donne pas une indication véritable de la destination finale des produits vendus parce que les territoires de vente des établissements particuliers peuvent s'étendre à tout le Dominion et même à des pays étrangers. Les résultats sur une base géographique indiquent plutôt le volume du commerce de gros dans les diverses cités ou autres régions du pays.

En plus de l'analyse géographique, les résultats du recensement du commerce de gros de 1941 sont présentés sous deux classifications fondamentales: (1) modes d'opération—d'après la nature des activités des divers établissements de gros et (2) genres de commerce—en partie d'après la désignation populaire mais plus particulièrement d'après l'importance relative des diverses marchandises vendues. Une troisième base de classement divise les établissements de gros selon le mode légal de propriété permettant l'exploitation du commerce.

Modes d'opération

Il est fait remarquer dans la section précédente qui traite des fonctions des établissements de gros que les différents établissements varient beaucoup sous ce rapport. Certains grossistes remplissent une grande variété de fonctions telles que l'achat, le rassemblement, le triage, le classement, l'entreposage, la vente et le crédit, tandis que d'autres ne comportent que certains de ces services. Comme l'emploi, la rémunération et les autres éléments de l'exploitation varient naturellement d'après l'étendue des services donnés, il est important qu'un classement des établissements soit fait selon les fonctions. Diverses bases de classement peuvent alors être utilisées. Par exemple, les établissements peuvent être classés:

- a) Selon qu'ils exploitent un commerce pour leur propre compte ou comme agents ou courtiers pour le compte d'autres.
- b) Selon qu'ils ont des stocks pour leur propre compte, en consignment, ou qu'ils n'en ont pas.
- c) Selon l'étendue du service de livraison.
- d) Selon que l'importance est donnée à la vente, ou à l'achat et au rassemblement.

- e) Selon qu'ils sont engagés principalement dans le commerce domestique ou le commerce étranger.
- f) Selon le mode de propriété de l'établissement en question, s'il s'agit d'un établissement indépendant ou d'un établissement faisant partie d'une compagnie mère.

Ces bases de classement, de même que d'autres, permettent une grande variété de combinaisons. Comme le nombre des différentes classifications employées dans le recensement ne doit pas être porté au point de rendre le travail impossible, il a été nécessaire d'établir des règlements plus ou moins arbitraires dans les cas où les bases de classement entraîneraient du chevauchement. Par exemple, un certain nombre de manufacturiers de pays étrangers ont des succursales ou bureaux de ventes au Canada. Ces succursales peuvent être classées comme succursales de ventes de manufacturiers si le point de vue propriété est considéré, mais elles peuvent aussi être classées comme établissements importateurs puisqu'elles se spécialisent dans l'importation de marchandises. La dernière classe a été adoptée dans de tels cas. Une deuxième illustration de cette caractéristique se rencontre dans le cas d'établissements situés dans d'autres pays et qui possèdent des bureaux d'achats au Canada pour l'expédition de marchandises à la compagnie mère à l'étranger. Ces bureaux d'achat peuvent être classés au recensement comme établissements exportateurs puisqu'ils sont engagés principalement dans le commerce d'exportation. Ils peuvent aussi être classés comme acheteurs résidents ou agents acheteurs pour lesquels il existe une classe distincte. Ici encore cette dernière classe a été préférée. Un troisième cas, peut-être encore plus important, est celui des compagnies d'éleveurs en chaîne qui font le commerce des produits du grain. Dans ce cas, l'importance a été donnée au rassemblement plutôt qu'à la vente et ces compagnies ont été classées comme éleveurs en chaîne plutôt que comme marchands exportateurs.

Quant à la classification selon le mode d'opération, le domaine de gros a été divisé en six groupes principaux. Chacun de ces groupes est formé d'un certain nombre de modes apparentés plus détaillés, soit 31 en tout. Les paragraphes suivants donnent une brève description de ces diverses classes selon le mode.

1. Grossistes réguliers

Ce groupe principal comprend les établissements de gros engagés avant tout dans l'achat et la vente de marchandises pour leur propre compte. La plupart de ces établissements remplissent toutes les fonctions de gros énumérées dans une section précédente, mais un certain nombre ne les remplissent pas toutes. Les définitions utilisées dans la classification des grossistes réguliers sont les suivantes:

Marchands de gros.—Ce sont les maisons de gros qui remplissent toutes les fonctions de semi-grossistes ou grossistes. Ils achètent des marchandises en grandes quantités pour leur propre compte et les revendent en plus petites quantités. Ils maintiennent des maisons d'affaires y compris des entrepôts pour leurs marchandises. Ils envoient les factures, livrent, font crédit à leur clients et assument les risques inhérents à leur genre d'affaires. Ils vendent habituellement aux marchands ou détaillants par l'intermédiaire de voyageurs de commerce qui visitent régulièrement leur clients. De plus, cette classe comprend les maisons de fournitures et d'outillage qui font le commerce de marchandises de producteurs, comme la machinerie, l'outillage et les fournitures, et qui vendent en grande partie aux consommateurs commerciaux et industriels. Les établissements de cette classe sont particulièrement intéressés dans les marchandises d'origine canadienne; autrement ils seraient classés comme marchands importateurs.

Grossistes vendant à un groupe de détaillants indépendants.—Le questionnaire utilisé pour la section de gros du recensement demandait si l'établissement faisant rapport commanditait ou était affilié à une chaîne indépendante de magasins de détail, c.-à-d., un nombre de détaillants indépendants groupés pour fins d'achat ou de publicité. Tous les marchands de gros qui déclaraient une telle relation étaient attribués à cette classe indépendamment de la portion de leurs ventes faite aux détaillants de tels organismes. Ce genre de grossistes se rencontre surtout dans l'épicerie. Il en existe cependant un certain nombre qui se spécialisent dans d'autres genres de commerce comme l'outillage automobile, la pharmacie et la quincaillerie.

Marchands exportateurs.—Ce sont des marchands de gros qui se spécialisent dans le commerce d'exportation. Ils achètent et vendent pour leur propre compte et diffèrent en grande partie des marchands de gros réguliers en ce que la plus grande partie de leur commerce est faite avec des acheteurs de l'étranger. Les marchands exportateurs se rencontrent surtout dans le commerce des produits primaires, particulièrement le grain, le poisson et autres aliments marins, le bois d'œuvre et autres produits forestiers. Les succursales canadiennes d'établissements étrangers ayant pour but l'achat de marchandises qui seront expédiées à une compagnie mère de l'extérieur sont classées comme agents acheteurs ou acheteurs résidents plutôt que comme marchands exportateurs.

Marchands importateurs.—Les fonctions des marchands importateurs ressemblent à celles des marchands de gros réguliers. Ces marchands achètent et vendent pour leur propre compte, possèdent des stocks et donnent les services offerts par la classe des marchands de gros. Leur principale distinction provient de la source de leurs achats, qui est surtout étrangère. Les succursales de ventes des maisons étrangères au Canada pour la vente de produits fournis par la compagnie mère sont comprises dans cette catégorie. Ces marchands importateurs qui s'apparentent beaucoup aux marchands de gros et n'en diffèrent que par l'origine des produits qui est plutôt étrangère que domestique se rencontrent dans une grande variété de commerces. Ils sont particulièrement importants dans le commerce de l'outillage automobile, du charbon, des fruits et des légumes, et dans diverses subdivisions du commerce des textiles en gros.

Commissionnaires et expéditeurs à vue.—Les expéditeurs à vue ont un bureau pour l'achat et la vente à leur propre compte, mais n'ont pas d'entrepôts et ne touchent pas aux marchandises. Ils se portent acquéreurs des marchandises qu'ils commandent du producteur et assument tous les risques inhérents à une telle possession. Ils font crédit aux clients de leur propre chef et font leurs propres encaissements. Au Canada, ce genre de grossiste se rencontre surtout dans le commerce du charbon et du coke ou le commerce du bois d'œuvre. La marchandise est souvent commandée après qu'un acheteur a été trouvé et est expédiée directement du fournisseur à l'acheteur. L'expéditeur à vue proprement dit n'a pas de stocks. Certains établissements cependant jouent le double rôle d'expéditeurs à vue et de marchands de gros, de sorte que certains inventaires paraissent dans les résultats du recensement de cette classe.

Grossistes par correspondance.—Le grossiste par correspondance, comme son nom l'indique, fait la plus grande partie de ses affaires par correspondance, se servant de méthodes semblables à celles des bureaux de ventes par correspondance dans le commerce de détail. La plupart des marchands de gros font une portion de leurs affaires par correspondance et plusieurs bureaux de ventes par correspondance ont des placiers à l'extérieur dont le travail consiste à visiter les clients, recueillir des commandes et établir de bons rapports. Ce genre de grossiste a relativement peu d'importance au Canada. On le trouve dans une grande variété de commerces qui n'ont rien de commun.

Distributeurs ambulants.—Ce sont des grossistes qui ont des camions plutôt qu'un établissement, bien que généralement, ils aient un bureau ou d'autres quartiers de quelque nature. Ils remplissent la plupart des fonctions des marchands de gros réguliers avec la seule différence que la vente et la livraison se font simultanément par les camionneurs-vendeurs, en cours de route. Les distributeurs ambulants forment une classe importante dans la vente de certains produits alimentaires. Ce genre de distributeur se rencontre fréquemment dans la vente de confiseries, de liqueurs douces et autres produits périssables comme les produits de la boulangerie, les fruits et les légumes frais. Ils ont relativement peu de stocks en entrepôt vendent habituellement au comptant ou à crédit à court terme.

Il est entendu que cette classe ne comprend pas les services de livraison par camions maintenus par les manufacturiers pour la livraison de leurs propres produits. Le terme s'applique seulement aux grossistes utilisant cette méthode de distribution et qui achètent d'un ou plusieurs fournisseurs pour revendre à leurs clients qui sont en grande partie de petits marchands de détails.

II. Succursales ou bureaux de ventes des manufacturiers

Ces succursales ou bureaux de ventes sont maintenus par des manufacturiers distinctement de leur usine et ont pour but premier d'obtenir des commandes pour les produits fabriqués par la compagnie mère. Les fonctions et les méthodes d'opération varient avec les différents établissements: ces derniers peuvent avoir des stocks, n'en pas avoir, ou avoir des stocks limités; la facturation peut être faite par ces succursales, le siège social seulement, ou en partie par les succursales et en partie par le siège social; tous les employés des succursales de ventes peuvent être des employés propres de la compagnie mère ou ils peuvent être embauchés par le gérant de la succursale et payés à même ses commissions; les autres dépenses d'exploitation des succursales peuvent être payées directement par la compagnie mère ou par le gérant de la succursale à même une commission générale qu'il reçoit; les ventes des succursales peuvent être faites à des marchands de gros, à des détaillants ou à des consommateurs industriels. Les organismes de ventes constitués en sociétés distinctes qui sont des filiales des établissements manufacturiers et qui agissent comme agents de distribution des produits des compagnies mères sont classés comme grossistes réguliers plutôt que comme succursales de ventes des manufacturiers.

Bureaux de ventes de district ou généraux.—Pour les fins du recensement, ce vaste groupe de succursales ou bureaux de ventes des manufacturiers a été divisé en trois autres classes détaillées. La première est formée des bureaux de ventes de district ou généraux lorsqu'ils sont indiqués comme unités distinctes de l'établissement manufacturier. Cette classe comprend aussi les bureaux de ventes de district maintenus par certains manufacturiers et, en particulier, par les raffineurs de dérivés du pétrole, pour surveiller l'activité des succursales de ventes situées dans leurs régions respectives. Les bureaux généraux de ventes exécutent généralement les commandes du Gouvernement, voient au commerce d'exportation et aux autres fortes commandes.

Succursales de ventes des manufacturiers (avec stocks).—C'est le genre le plus fréquent et le plus important. Ces succursales ont des stocks assez complets, peuvent faire ou ne pas faire la facturation des marchandises mais sont généralement chargés de faire les encaissements dans leur région. Des vendeurs, à qui est confié le territoire adjacent à l'endroit où leur succursale est située, prennent les commandes. Les commandes d'outillage dispendieux peuvent être amorcées par les succursales et transmises au bureau central pour plus ample négociation. Les succursales de ventes avec stocks se rencontrent dans une grande variété de commerces. Les fabricants de peintures et vernis, d'appareils électriques, de machinerie industrielle et commerciale, de certains produits alimentaires et, en particulier, de farine, de divers produits textiles, recourent fréquemment à cette méthode de distribution.

Succursales de ventes des manufacturiers (sans stocks).—Celles-ci sont des bureaux permanents avec personnel permanent mais qui n'ont pas d'aménagement pour l'entreposage ni de moyens de livraison. Elles sont engagées dans la sollicitation de commandes qui doivent être exécutées directement par l'usine. La préparation des factures est faite au bureau central mais les comptes arriérés sont fréquemment perçus par la succursale. Ce genre de distribution, bien que moins répandu que les succursales de ventes avec stocks, a une importance considérable au point de vue du volume d'affaires.

III. Dépôts d'essence

Les dépôts d'essence sont les établissements de gros qui font la distribution par wagon-citerne des produits du pétrole, principalement l'essence et l'huile, aux stations de détail, aux consommateurs industriels et autres, aux distributeurs ou semi-grossistes et aux cultivateurs. La majorité des dépôts d'essence sont la propriété des compagnies engagées dans le raffinage, et, pour cette raison, ils peuvent être considérés comme des succursales de ventes des manufacturiers. Les dépôts d'essence se distinguent des autres succursales de manufacturiers surtout par leurs caractéristiques physiques qui consistent en aménagement d'entreposage aux gares de chemins de fer et le long des autres voies de transport. Les distributeurs en gros qui vendent des produits de pétrole emballés, autres que l'essence ou l'huile, figurent dans la classe de grossistes réguliers et non ici.

Les trois sous-classes qui font partie du groupe principal sont ainsi définies:

Dépôts indépendants.—Ce sont de simples dépôts exploités comme établissements particuliers plutôt que comme partie d'un organisme multiple d'un genre quelconque.

Dépôts à commission.—C'est le genre le plus répandu; il consiste de dépôts de gros qui sont la propriété de distributeurs de pétrole et qui sont exploités par des agents ou locataires à bail. Les ententes entre les propriétaires et les exploitants au sujet de la rémunération des agents, le paiement des dépenses d'exploitation et la perception des comptes ne sont pas uniformes dans tous les établissements. Certains dépôts-agences sont exploités sur une base de vente en consignation. Dans la plupart des cas, les exploitants de ces dépôts sont payés à commission et des montants sont prévus pour les gages des employés et les frais d'exploitation. Dans de tels cas, le personnel du dépôt est considéré comme étant employé par l'exploitant plutôt que par le propriétaire.

Dépôts à salaires.—Ces dépôts sont la propriété des compagnies qui font la distribution en gros et qui les exploitent. Les employés de ces dépôts sont des employés immédiats des compagnies pétrolières propriétaires de ces dépôts.

IV. Agents et courtiers

Ce groupe important comprend des personnes ou des établissements qui ont des endroits distincts d'affaires et dont les fonctions sont de préparer l'achat ou la vente de marchandises pour le compte d'autres. Ils n'achètent ni ne vendent directement; leur principale fonction est de trouver des acheteurs pour les produits de fabricants domestiques ou étrangers, ou de trouver des marchandises pour les grossistes domestiques ou étrangers. Règle générale, ils ne touchent pas aux marchandises mais en passent les commandes au producteur pour expédition directe à l'acheteur. Les agents peuvent représenter un ou plusieurs clients et fréquemment ils se spécialisent dans certaines variétés de marchandises. Les agents et courtiers remplissent aussi la fonction supplémentaire de fournir des renseignements sur les marchés. Le revenu des agents et des courtiers provient de commissions ou honoraires perçus d'après la valeur ou la quantité des marchandises vendues. Les tableaux ne contiennent que des chiffres estimatifs du volume de leurs ventes parce que plusieurs agents ne tiennent pas d'écritures sur le volume de leurs affaires. Les termes utilisés relativement aux différents genres d'agents ne sont pas synonymes dans tous les genres de commerce, mais les définitions généralement acceptées sont données ci-dessous.

Compagnies de ventes aux enchères.—Ce sont des maisons qui s'occupent de la vente en gros de denrées par la méthode à l'enchère. Elles ne sont pas propriétaires des marchandises mais elles fournissent un endroit pour l'inspection et la vente de ces marchandises qui leur sont généralement remises en dépôt. Leur rémunération est sous la forme d'une commission qui est déduite, avec les autres frais, avant la remise des produits de la vente aux clients. Les compagnies de ventes aux enchères sont importantes dans le commerce des fourrures (brutes et apprêtées).

Courtiers.—Les courtiers sont des représentants d'acheteurs ou de vendeurs. Ils ne prennent pas possession des marchandises, ne les manutentionnent pas, ne fournissent pas de crédit aux clients et ne s'occupent pas des factures. Ils sont libres de servir tous les clients et leurs relations avec un client en particulier ne sont pas permanentes comme dans le cas des agents de vente ou des agents de manufacturiers. Les pouvoirs des courtiers quant aux prix et conditions de vente sont limités par leurs commettants. Habituellement, les courtiers s'occupent de transactions plus considérables que les autres genres d'agents. Une autre fonction des courtiers est de fournir à leurs commettants des renseignements sur le marché. La commission des courtiers est habituellement basée sur la valeur ou la quantité des marchandises figurant dans leurs transactions. Les courtiers s'occupent principalement du commerce du grain, des produits laitiers, des fruits et légumes, et de spécialités alimentaires. A remarquer que dans le commerce du grain, seuls les courtiers s'occupant de ventes au comptant figurent au recensement du commerce de gros. Les courtiers qui vendent à découvert ne sont pas compris.

Marchands à commission.—Bien qu'ils ne prennent pas possession des marchandises qu'ils vendent, ces marchands diffèrent de la plupart des autres agents en ce qu'ils manutentionnent et emmagasinent les marchandises qui leur sont consignées; ils s'occupent généralement de la rédaction des factures et livrent aux acheteurs. Ils sont libres de négocier des ventes aux prix les plus avantageux; ils en déduisent leurs commissions et autres frais et remettent le solde à leurs commettants. Ils fournissent souvent du crédit à leur propre risque. Règle générale, les relations entre le marchand à commission et son commettant n'ont pas un caractère permanent. Les marchands à commission combinent fréquemment leurs fonctions d'agence à celles de grossistes réguliers en ce qu'ils achètent des marchandises et les revendent pour leur propre compte. Les commerces où les marchands à commission sont les plus nombreux sont la mercerie et le vêtement, les produits de ferme, particulièrement les bestiaux, l'épicerie et les spécialités alimentaires. Il y en a également un grand nombre dans le commerce des produits alimentaires (excepté l'épicerie) et celui de la machinerie.

Agents et courtiers exportateurs.—Ce groupe comprend tous les genres d'agents et courtiers engagés dans la négociation de ventes à des pays étrangers. Ils agissent de la même manière que les autres agents sur le marché domestique et ils peuvent représenter des clients de pays étrangers dans l'achat de marchandises canadiennes ou ils peuvent vendre au compte d'établissements canadiens à des acheteurs de l'étranger. Les agents exportateurs se rencontrent le plus communément dans le commerce des produits de la ferme et du bois d'œuvre, bien qu'ils s'occupent parfois d'une diversité de marchandises pour un marché en particulier plutôt que de se spécialiser dans une variété de marchandises.

Agents et courtiers importateurs.—Ce sont des agences qui négocient la vente de produits étrangers au Canada. Ils agissent de la même manière que les autres agents du commerce domestique. Parfois, comme dans le cas des marchands exportateurs, ils s'occupent d'une diversité de marchandises de la même source. Les agents importateurs se rencontrent dans plusieurs genres de commerce mais celui de la mercerie et du vêtement, particulièrement les étoffes et tissus à la pièce, en compte le plus grand nombre. Ces agents s'intéressent également aux produits de la ferme (matières brutes), à l'épicerie, aux spécialités alimentaires, et aux machines, outillage et fournitures (excepté électriques).

Agents de manufacturiers.—Les agents de manufacturiers vendent une partie de la production de certains manufacturiers avec qui ils entretiennent des relations permanentes. Ils font affaires habituellement dans une région déterminée et soumis aux restrictions posées par leurs commettants sur les prix et les conditions de vente. Ils ne font pas de perception de comptes et n'assument aucun risque quant au crédit. Leur principale fonction est la vente, bien que certains d'entre eux puissent posséder de petits stocks. Leur activité ressemble beaucoup à celle des vendeurs réguliers, mais elle s'en distingue en ce que ces agents font affaires pour eux-mêmes plutôt que comme employés d'un manufacturier; ils représentent habituellement deux ou plusieurs manufacturiers dont les produits ne sont pas en concurrence bien que dans des variétés plutôt apparentées. Le plus grand nombre d'agents de manufacturiers se rencontre dans le vêtement, l'épicerie, les spécialités alimentaires, les machines, outillage et fournitures.

Agents acheteurs et acheteurs résidents.—Ce sont des agents indépendants engagés dans l'achat de marchandises au nom de leurs clients avec lesquels ils entretiennent généralement des relations contractuelles permanentes. Il faut les distinguer des agents acheteurs employés par des établissements manufacturiers qui ne font pas affaires pour eux-mêmes mais pour un seul employeur. Le grain et le bois d'œuvre sont les deux genres de commerce où ce genre d'opération est le plus commun.

Agents vendeurs.—Il s'agit ici d'agents indépendants à commission dont la principale fonction est d'écouler la production entière ou la production d'une variété donnée de marchandises pour le manufacturier ou les manufacturiers qu'ils représentent. Ils diffèrent aussi des agents de manufacturiers en ce qu'ils jouissent d'une liberté étendue quant au territoire de ventes qu'ils doivent desservir, aux prix, aux conditions de vente, etc., et ils assument souvent une responsabilité financière considérable. Les agents vendeurs doivent aussi s'occuper de la réclame et des moyens propres à aider à la vente. Ce genre d'agents se rencontrent surtout dans le commerce des produits chimiques, des produits pharmaceutiques et connexes, et des produits textiles (autres que merceries).

V. Rassembleurs de produits primaires

Ce groupe important renferme plusieurs genres de grossistes ayant une caractéristique distinctive commune: ils sont engagés dans le rassemblement de produits primaires qu'ils achètent directement des fermiers et autres producteurs primaires pour une plus grande économie de manutention et d'expédition qu'il ne serait possible au producteur particulier. Cette catégorie comprend les rassembleurs de poisson, de fourrures et de produits forestiers, aussi bien que de produits agricoles. Les rassembleurs de produits primaires peuvent acheter ou vendre directement ou travailler à commission pour un plus gros marchand.

Acheteurs en ville de produits primaires.—Ce groupe comprend des personnes ou compagnies ayant des établissements dans des endroits de 5,000 habitants ou plus et qui sont engagées dans l'achat de produits primaires directement de fermiers, trappeurs, pêcheurs, etc. Ils achètent habituellement pour eux-mêmes mais peuvent travailler à commission pour de gros marchands. Ces acheteurs sont particulièrement intéressés dans les produits de la ferme (matières brutes), les articles pour la ferme et les produits alimentaires (excepté l'épicerie), bien qu'un certain nombre s'occupent aussi de produits forestiers. Les acheteurs à la ville de produits primaires ressemblent beaucoup aux marchands de gros réguliers, la principale distinction étant qu'ils achètent des producteurs.

Coopératives.—Ce sont des associations locales formées par des groupes de producteurs de produits de la ferme de certaines régions dans le but de vendre leurs produits aux prix les plus avantageux et avec minimum de frais. Ces associations agissent pour le bénéfice mutuel des patrons et manutentionnent fréquemment des approvisionnements de ferme comme le fourrage, les graines de semence, les engrais, etc. comme un service à leurs membres. Chaque local d'une association coopérative a dû déclarer s'il vendait ou non par l'intermédiaire d'un organisme central de ventes. Il y a donc une certaine proportion de double emploi entre les ventes de ce genre et celles du groupe des agences de ventes en coopérative, ce dernier représentant dans une certaine mesure la deuxième phase de distribution. Les éleveurs en chaîne exploités coopérativement sont compris dans la classe spéciale des éleveurs en chaîne et non dans les Coopératives.

Agences de ventes coopératives.—Celles-ci sont les bureaux centraux de vente maintenus par les coopératives pour la vente méthodique des produits agricoles. Ces agences coopératives de ventes vendent sur les plus grands marchés de denrées ou de bestiaux ou s'occupent d'exportation. Les sociétés désintéressées commanditées par le Gouvernement comme la "Nova Scotia Apple Marketing Board" et la "B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd" ne sont pas comprises dans le recensement du commerce de gros.

Acheteurs à la campagne de produits primaires.—Ce sont des personnes ou des maisons qui ont les mêmes fonctions que les acheteurs à la ville de produits primaires mais qui agissent dans des endroits de moins de 5,000 habitants.

Éleveurs indépendants.—Les éleveurs de campagne qui sont la propriété de personnes de l'endroit et qui servent au rassemblement et à la vente du grain sont classés dans ce groupe. Le ou les mêmes propriétaires peuvent exploiter plusieurs éleveurs, mais règle générale, ils n'en exploitent qu'un seul. Seuls les éleveurs qui achètent des fermiers figurent au recensement. Les éleveurs de terminus et les éleveurs d'emmagasinement sont omis.

Éleveurs en chaîne.—Ce genre comprend les éleveurs locaux qui sont la propriété de grandes compagnies de grain ou de grandes minoteries. Les éleveurs coopératifs sont aussi compris ici. Comme la principale fonction de ces éleveurs est le rassemblement et non la vente, le volume d'affaires déclaré est la valeur des paiements en espèces versés aux fermiers à chaque éleveur. Cette méthode diffère de celle du recensement de 1931 alors que les compagnies de grain déclaraient la valeur des ventes faites par leurs bureaux centraux situés, dans la plupart des cas, à Winnipeg.

Emballleurs et expéditeurs.—Cette classe comprend les établissements engagés dans le rassemblement, l'emballage et l'expédition du poisson et autres aliments marins, et des fruits et légumes. Les pêcheurs qui font leur propre emballage ne sont pas compris, ni les producteurs de fruits et légumes qui emballent et expédient eux-mêmes leurs produits.

VI. Autres modes d'opération

Entrepôts de distribution.—Cette classe se compose d'entrepôts qui s'occupent de distribution aussi bien que d'emmagasinement. La vente de marchandises cependant doit contribuer au moins 50 p. 100 des recettes avant qu'un entrepôt puisse être attribué à cette classe. Les entrepôts achètent et vendent généralement pour leur propre compte. Les entrepôts de brasseries en Ontario et les agences de bière dans le Québec figurent dans ce groupe et représentent la plus forte proportion du nombre total d'entrepôts de distribution. Les entrepôts des compagnies de magasins en chaîne et des Commission des liqueurs des gouvernements ne sont pas compris dans le recensement du commerce de gros de 1941.

Distributeurs de films.—Ce sont des agences de distribution de films aux cinémas qui en même temps en encaissent le loyer. Les ventes déclarées pour les échanges de films dans les tableaux représentent le montant reçu pour le loyer des films et, dans une faible mesure, les ventes de matière publicitaire.

Compagnies de la Couronne.—Ce sont des compagnies engagées surtout dans l'accumulation, l'emmagasinement et la distribution de denrées particulièrement requises pour l'effort de guerre.

Genres de commerce

Les établissements de commerce de gros sont classés selon le genre de commerce d'après les denrées vendues, comme l'indique le questionnaire dans la section des denrées ou dans la description générale du commerce. La classification selon le genre de commerce, d'après les denrées vendues, se divise en quatre groupes principaux.

Il y a la classe dite de spécialité à laquelle appartiennent les établissements qui se spécialisent dans un groupe de marchandises comme le vêtement et la lingerie pour hommes, le vêtement et/ou la lingerie pour femmes, les marchandises à la pièce, les chaussures, les produits laitiers et les produits avicoles.

En deuxième lieu vient la classe dite de double spécialité qui comprend les établissements se spécialisant dans deux groupes de denrées désignées comme spécialités. Des exemples de cette deuxième classe sont: le vêtement et/ou la lingerie pour hommes et femmes; les produits laitiers et avicoles, les fruits et les légumes.

La troisième classe embrasse un assortiment général de marchandises et comprend les établissements qui offrent un assortiment plus ou moins complet de produits connexes comme: assortiment général de vêtements, assortiment général de quincaillerie, assortiment général d'épicerie.

La quatrième et dernière classe se compose d'établissements qui ne peuvent être classés comme ayant un assortiment général mais qui ne se spécialisent pas suffisamment dans aucun groupe de denrées pour être classés dans les genres dits de spécialité ou de double spécialité. Ces établissements sont groupés dans une dernière classe connue comme "tous autres" genres. Le groupe comprend aussi les établissements dont la description a été suffisante pour permettre de les attribuer au groupe approprié plus vaste établi selon le genre de marchandises vendues, mais pour lesquels les renseignements fournis étaient trop maigres pour les attribuer à un classement plus détaillé.

A l'appendice B de ce volume se trouve une liste complète des 148 classes détaillées, par genre de commerce, avec une description pour chacune. Bien que chaque questionnaire de gros ait été assigné à une classe particulière, la publication de particularités pour chaque classe dépend du nombre de commerçants engagés dans ce genre de commerce. Là où il est impossible de donner des détails complets sans révéler les opérations d'un établissement en particulier, les classes par genre de commerce sont réunies et les renseignements sont donnés pour ce plus vaste groupe seulement.

Formes d'organisation

COMPARAISONS AVEC LE RECENSEMENT ANTÉRIEUR

En comparant les résultats du recensement du commerce de gros de 1941 avec ceux du recensement antérieur de 1930 il faut tenir compte de certaines variations dans la portée des deux relevés et de changements dans les méthodes de classification. Dans l'ensemble, la portée et le contenu des deux recensements sont les mêmes. Il est probable que le relevé de 1941 a été plus complet que le précédent car au dernier recensement les listes des énumérateurs ont pu être révisées à l'aide des écritures de la Division des licences de la Commission des prix et du commerce en temps de guerre.

Certaines différences de classification peuvent expliquer l'absence de points de comparaison entre les chiffres des deux années. Les établissements ont été classés d'après leur activité principale et un changement dans la proportion des ventes attribuée au commerce de gros ou au commerce de détail dans les cas douteux aurait pour résultat que des établissements classés dans le domaine du détail en 1930 le seraient dans celui du gros en 1941, ou vice versa. De plus, certains établissements peuvent avoir été classés dans un genre différent de commerce en 1941 comparativement à 1931, par suite de changements dans les variétés de marchandises manutentionnées. De même, des modes différents d'opération peuvent avoir entraîné un changement dans le classement selon le mode d'opération.

Il y a eu aussi certaines différences déterminées dans les deux relevés dont il faut tenir compte dans la comparaison des résultats. Premièrement, les entrepôts des magasins en chaîne et des Commissions des liqueurs des gouvernements sont compris dans les données du commerce de gros de 1930 mais omis du recensement de 1941. Puis, les données des éleveurs en chaîne sont déclarées sur une différente base. Au recensement antérieur les compagnies d'éleveurs en chaîne ont déclaré les données de leurs agences de ventes seulement et le volume total des ventes était attribué à l'endroit où le bureau central était situé, habituellement Winnipeg. Le dernier recensement a appuyé surtout sur la fonction de rassemblement et un rapport séparé a été exigé de chaque éleveur. Les rapports couvraient donc les endroits où chaque éleveur était situé et le chiffre d'affaires donné pour cette classe dans les rapports de 1941 se référait aux paiements en espèces faits aux fermiers à chaque point d'achat.

Une autre différence de classement entre 1930 et 1941 survient dans le cas des succursales de ventes des saisons. En 1930, ces succursales étaient considérées comme établissements de gros; en 1941, elles sont classées comme succursales de ventes de manufacturiers.

Un facteur qui n'est pas un changement de classement mais qui a une portée sur la comparabilité des deux séries de données est la constitution en sociétés commerciales distinctes d'organismes de vente qui sont des filiales de certains manufacturiers entre les deux années. De telles sociétés, qui sont la propriété de la compagnie mère mais qui sont exploitées sous un nom et une charte séparés, sont classées comme grossistes réguliers en 1941, tandis qu'en 1930 elles sont incluses dans les succursales de ventes des manufacturiers ou dans les bureaux de ventes de district ou généraux.

EXPLICATION DES TERMES

Nombre d'établissements.—Un rapport séparé a été exigé de chaque établissement de gros au Canada en activité en 1941 même si cet établissement était une succursale ou un bureau de vente d'un organisme plus vaste. Le nombre d'établissements donné dans les tableaux indique le nombre d'endroits séparés d'affaires qui ont pour fonction première le commerce de gros.

Ventes.—Les chiffres de ventes représentent les ventes nettes, c.-à-d. les ventes brutes après déduction des marchandises rendues et les allocations, dans le cas d'établissements s'occupant du financement des ventes. Dans le cas des agents qui travaillent à commission ou pour des honoraires, les ventes nettes représentent la valeur des commandes remplies au cours de l'année. Il existe cependant une ou deux exceptions. Dans le commerce du grain, les montants donnés comme ventes des éleveurs en chaîne représentent les paiements en espèces aux fermiers à l'éleveur plutôt que la valeur des ventes faites par les agences de vente des compagnies de grain. Les chiffres déclarés par les échanges de films sont les montants reçus des cinémas pour la location des films, de même qu'un plus petit montant qui représente la vente de matériel publicitaire. Toutes recettes découlant de services ou de sources auxiliaires autres que la vente des marchandises, et comprises dans le total des affaires des établissements faisant rapport, figurent aussi dans les "Ventes".

Les établissements devaient indiquer la proportion des ventes faites pour leur propre compte, c.-à-d. de marchandises qu'ils possédaient, et la proportion des ventes à commission, que ce soit de stocks détenus en consignation ou simplement par commandes pour livraison directe du fournisseur à l'acheteur. Les tableaux font donc voir la proportion du volume total des ventes faites au moyen de chacune de ces méthodes.

Tandis que les ventes totales pour tous les genres de grossistes paraissent dans certains des tableaux, il faut se rappeler que ces données font un peu double emploi quant à la valeur des marchandises écoulées par le commerce de gros. Un commerce considérable se fait entre les genres de grossistes spécialisés, particulièrement les agents, les courtiers et les rassembleurs de produits primaires. Les plus grands grossistes vendent souvent à des maisons de gros moins considérables ou de demi-gros. Le degré de chevauchement des différents genres de grossistes est indiqué au tableau 12, "Distribution des ventes par classes de clients".

Propriétaires.—Ce terme désigne tous les propriétaires d'établissements non constitués en sociétés commerciales qui consacrent tout leur temps, ou presque, à la conduite de leurs affaires. Les membres d'un établissement constitué en société commerciale ne sont pas déclarés ici mais sont compris avec les employés. Il n'y a aucun chiffre dans les tableaux sur les salaires ou retraits des propriétaires, les renseignements donnés n'étant pas assez uniformes.

Nombre d'employés.—Le nombre d'employés donné ici est celui des employés à temps entier sur les listes de paie des établissements faisant rapport. Généralement, le nombre moyen d'employés par année est le nombre déclaré mais dans certains cas c'est le nombre d'employés sur la liste de paie la journée où le rapport a été préparé. Seuls les employés réguliers de l'établissement devaient être déclarés. Ce groupe comprend les administrateurs actifs de compagnies instituées en sociétés, les vendeurs et toute autre main-d'œuvre louée employée à temps entier. Les agents indépendants recevant une commission de l'établissement faisant rapport ne devaient pas être compris comme employés. De même, les employés des manufacturiers en gros engagés seulement dans la production et non dans la vente, et qui font rapport annuellement au recensement de la Division de l'industrie du Bureau de la Statistique, ne devaient pas être déclarés. La rémunération des employés engagés dans la fabrication seulement devait aussi être omise des salaires et gages déclarés.

Salaires, gages et commissions.—Sous cet en-tête paraît le montant total versé aux employés durant l'année avant déduction de la taxe de la Défense nationale et des services sociaux comme l'Assurance-chômage. Ces données se rapportent au nombre d'employés décrits ci-dessus.

Stocks en main.—Cet article fait voir le coût ou la valeur de remplacement des stocks en main dans des établissements de gros à la fin de 1941. Les stocks sont donnés sous les entêtes "en propre" ou "détenus en consignation". Le premier en-tête comprend les stocks possédés en main ainsi que les stocks de grossistes qui ont été laissés en consignation à d'autres personnes ou établissements. La valeur des stocks détenus en consignation dans des établissements de gros est donnée sous le deuxième en-tête "détenus en consignation".

Comptes à recevoir.—Les établissements devaient déclarer la valeur des comptes et les billets à recevoir de clients dans leurs livres le 1er décembre 1941, non compris les comptes rayés. Tous les établissements n'ont pas donné leurs comptes à recevoir de sorte que les montants donnés sous cet en-tête ne représentent que les établissements qui ont donné ce renseignement. Bien que les données soient considérées comme passablement complètes, il faut tenir compte de ce facteur dans l'utilisation de cet item.

ANALYSE DES RÉSULTATS

Sommaire général

Un total de 24,758 établissements au Canada sont classés comme établissements de gros au recensement de 1941 des établissements de commerce et de service. D'après les rapports, le volume total des ventes de ces établissements est de $5,290,750,500, dont $4,278,341,500 à leur "propre compte" et $1,012,409,000 à commission. Les établissements de gros emploient 131,127 personnes, dont 13,656 sont propriétaires ou sociétaires et 117,471, employés à salaire ou à gages. Ces 117,471 employés comprennent 94,627 hommes et 22,844 femmes. La rémunération totale de ces employés s'élève à $189,449,100, soit une moyenne de $1,613 par personne. Dans les établissements de gros, le stock des propriétaires eux-mêmes est évalué à $492,921,000, tandis que celui qui leur est consigné par d'autres s'élève à $25,539,500.

Commerce de gros selon le mode d'opération

Tel que mentionné déjà, les établissements de gros sont classés par mode d'opération selon leurs fonctions. Les ventes totales de $5,290,750,500 sont réparties comme suit: grossistes réguliers, $2,358,475,300 ou 44.6 pour cent; succursales de ventes de manufacturiers, $1,206,993,800 ou 22.8 pour cent; dépôts d'essence, $216,292,300 ou 4.1 pour cent; agents et courtiers, $907,520,300 ou 17.2 pour cent; rassembleurs de produits primaires, $453,300,500 ou 8.5 pour cent; autres, $148,168,300 ou 2.8 pour cent. Ces volumes de ventes, il va sans dire, comprennent les divers doubles emplois du commerce effectué entre les genres mentionnés à la section précédente, "Explication des termes". Le tableau suivant donne le nombre d'établissements et les ventes selon chacun des principaux modes d'opération.

Le genre le plus important parmi les grossistes réguliers, tant par le nombre d'unités que par le chiffre d'affaires, est celui du marchand de gros. Ce marchand remplit toutes les fonctions du grossiste, maintient un service d'entreposage et de livraison, fait crédit et assume les risques financiers inhérents à ces entreprises. Les marchands de gros sont au nombre de 7,075 et leurs ventes s'élèvent à $1,425,002,400 en 1941. Semblables à ces marchands de gros sont les grossistes qui vendent à un groupe de détaillants indépendants; ils sont au nombre de 100 et leurs ventes s'élèvent à $131,658,400. Ce genre comprend tous les grossistes qui, d'après leurs déclarations, commanditent une chaîne indépendante de magasins de détail ou y sont affiliés, quelle que soit la proportion de leurs ventes aux détaillants de tels organismes<sup>(1)</sup>. Les grossistes qui vendent à un groupe de détaillants indépendants se rencontrent surtout dans l'épicerie; il en existe aussi un nombre restreint dans l'outillage d'automobile, la pharmacie et la quincaillerie.

Les marchands importateurs occupent le deuxième rang, par ordre d'importance, chez les grossistes. Ils exploitent 1,479 établissements et leurs ventes s'élèvent à $457,744,400. Les marchands importateurs exercent à peu près les mêmes fonctions que les marchands de gros mais, comme l'indique le terme, leur commerce s'applique surtout à la marchandise achetée de fournisseurs étrangers.

Les marchands exportateurs, dont les fonctions s'apparentent également à celles des marchands de gros sauf que la majeure partie de leur commerce se fait avec les pays étrangers, sont au nombre de 146. Leurs ventes s'élèvent à $189,027,600.

Parmi les autres genres de grossistes classés dans le groupe principal de "grossistes réguliers" mais dont les fonctions sont plus restreintes, il y a les commissionnaires et expéditeurs à vue, qui exploitent 149 établissements dont les ventes s'élèvent à $144,530,500; les distributeurs ambulants, au nombre de 447, dont le chiffre d'affaires atteint $9,134,800; les grossistes par correspondance, dont les 21 établissements font des ventes totales de $1,377,200.

Les 1,622 établissements classés comme succursales ou bureaux de ventes de manufacturiers comprennent 1,139 succursales de ventes avec stocks, 387 succursales de ventes sans stocks et 96 bureaux de ventes de district ou généraux. Les ventes des succursales avec stocks s'élèvent à $564,228,000; celles des succursales sans stocks, à $243,547,100; celles des bureaux de district ou généraux, à $399,218,700.

Les 3,973 dépôts d'essence sont répartis en trois classes. Le plus gros chiffre d'affaires, soit $142,602,400, est celui des 777 "dépôts à salaire", exploités par les raffineries importantes et les gros importateurs de pétrole. Les dépôts exploités par des agents à commission sont au nombre de 3,052 et les ventes de ce groupe s'élèvent à $61,402,500. Il y a aussi 144 dépôts d'essence indépendants dont les ventes s'élèvent à $12,287,400.

Les courtiers constituent la classe la plus importante sous la rubrique "agents et courtiers" quant au chiffre d'affaires. Cette classe compte 158 établissements dont les ventes s'élèvent à $243,220,500. Les établissements de 1,031 agents de manufacturiers sont beaucoup plus nombreux que ceux des agents de tout autre genre et leur chiffre d'affaires, soit $217,016,500, suit de très près celui des courtiers. Les marchands à commission viennent ensuite quant à l'importance du chiffre d'affaires, les ventes des 396 établissements ainsi classés s'élevant à $145,290,000. Les agents et courtiers importateurs sont au nombre de 422 et leurs ventes s'élèvent à $119,802,900; celles des 37 agents et courtiers exportateurs atteignent $115,403,800. Les autres genres spécialisés d'agents comprennent les agents acheteurs et les acheteurs résidents avec 30 établissements et des ventes de $33,949,300, 17 agents vendeurs dont les ventes sont de $19,306,600 et 15 compagnies de ventes aux enchères dont les ventes sont de $13,530,700. Les compagnies d'élevateurs en chaîne versent aux cultivateurs, par l'entremise de leurs 5,275 unités, des paiements en espèces de $238,806,600, soit un peu plus de 50 pour cent du chiffre total d'affaires des rassembleurs de produits primaires en 1941.

Les 326 sociétés coopératives de vente font des ventes de $64,070,800 pour leurs membres, tandis que les ventes des 33 agences coopératives de vente ont une valeur de $59,862,100. Un total de 1,111 personnes ou compagnies sont classées comme acheteurs à la campagne de produits primaires et leurs ventes s'élèvent à $46,468,700. Les ventes de 529 acheteurs en ville de produits primaires sont de $31,992,200; celles de 56 emballleurs et expéditeurs, de $6,547,000; celles de 36 élevateurs indépendants, de $5,553,100.

Dans le groupe qui reste figurent 200 entrepôts de distribution, dont la majeure partie est formée d'agences de brasserie de la province de Québec et d'entrepôts de brasserie de la province d'Ontario. Ces agences et entrepôts de brasserie font des ventes de $42,553,200. Les 69 établissements des distributeurs de films accusent des recettes de $13,028,700, qui proviennent surtout de la location de films. Les ventes des 5 compagnies de la Couronne qui font rapport s'élèvent à $92,586,400.

Répartition géographique des établissements et des ventes

Près de 46 pour cent de tous les établissements de gros compris dans le recensement de 1941 sont situés dans les provinces d'Ontario et de Québec, et ces établissements font 66 pour cent des ventes déclarées. La concentration est encore plus prononcée chez les grossistes réguliers, dont 72.5 pour cent sont de l'Ontario et du Québec. Les grossistes réguliers de ces deux provinces font 71 pour cent du commerce total de ce genre au Canada.

Les affaires faites par les agents et courtiers sont aussi concentrées assez fortement en Ontario et au Québec. Ces provinces contribuent pour 55 pour cent du commerce des grossistes de ce genre. Le Manitoba fournit également une proportion considérable des affaires totales des agents et courtiers, en raison de la présence à Winnipeg des courtiers en grain. Les agents et courtiers de cette province contribuent pour 27 pour cent aux ventes totales de l'ensemble de ce groupe.

Le commerce du grain crée également une concentration plus forte des affaires des rassembleurs de produits primaires dans les provinces des Prairies que dans l'Est du pays. Des 7,366 rassembleurs de produits primaires, 77 pour cent sont des provinces des Prairies et ils contribuent pour 66 pour cent aux ventes de ce genre.

Les dépôts d'essence sont aussi plus nombreux dans les provinces des Prairies. Cette région compte 69 pour cent de tous les dépôts d'essence au Canada. Par contre, elle ne fournit que 29 pour cent des ventes totales. C'est l'Ontario qui se classe première quant au chiffre d'affaires. Les 510 établissements de cette province constituent 13 pour cent du total, mais leurs ventes atteignent $90,687,200 ou 42 pour cent de celles de tous les dépôts d'essence. Le tableau suivant donne la répartition proportionnelle des établissements et des ventes, par province, de chacun des principaux genres de grossistes.

Le tableau III donne les chiffres des quatre principales villes du Canada et montre jusqu'à quel point les marchés de gros sont rassemblés dans les grands centres de population. La concentration est plus prononcée à l'égard des grossistes réguliers vu que les autres genres, et les rassembleurs en particulier, se trouvent, de par leur nature même, plus fréquemment dans les régions rurales. Des 9,417 grossistes réguliers, 5,005 ou 53-1 pour cent sont établis dans les quatre principales villes—Montréal, Toronto, Winnipeg et Vancouver. Les grossistes réguliers de ces villes font des ventes qui s'élèvent à $1,526,413,000, soit 65 pour cent du chiffre global d'affaires de tous les grossistes réguliers du Canada.

Chiffre d'affaires des établissements de gros

Alors que 72 pour cent de tous les établissements de gros déclarent des ventes de moins de $100,000 en 1941, les établissements de cette importance ne contribuent que pour 11 pour cent au chiffre global d'affaires. Par contre, moins de 4 pour cent de tous les établissements ont un chiffre d'affaires de plus de $1,000,000, mais ils contribuent pour plus de 55 pour cent au total des ventes.

La répartition des établissements selon l'importance de l'entreprise varie considérablement d'un genre d'opération à l'autre de même que d'un commerce particulier à un autre dans chaque genre. Chez les grossistes réguliers, 63 pour cent des établissements font des ventes annuelles inférieures à $100,000, mais ces établissements ne contribuent que 7-5 pour cent au chiffre global du groupe, tandis que ceux dont les ventes dépassent $1,000,000, soit 4-5 pour cent, fournissent 51 pour cent.

Une proportion encore plus forte des affaires des succursales de ventes de manufacturiers et des agents et courtiers est effectuée par les établissements les plus importants. Dans le premier groupe, 73 pour cent du total est fait par les établissements dont les ventes sont de $1,000,000 et plus, tandis que 66 pour cent des affaires entreprises par les courtiers sont attribuables aux établissements de même importance. A l'autre extrémité de l'échelle qui indique l'importance des ventes, la proportion des succursales de ventes de manufacturiers et des agents et courtiers dont les ventes sont au-dessous de $100,000 est plus faible que celle des grossistes réguliers. Leur nombre, d'après les rapports, constituent 34 pour cent et 51 pour cent respectivement du total de chaque groupe. Ces établissements de moindre importance ne contribuent que pour 2 pour cent et 4 pour cent respectivement au chiffre d'affaires de leur groupe.

Les dépôts d'essence et les rassembleurs sont portés à être plus nombreux dans les groupes de moindre importance; 88 pour cent du premier groupe et 91 pour cent du deuxième font des ventes de moins de $100,000, tandis que 35 pour cent des ventes des dépôts d'essence et 54 pour cent de celles des rassembleurs sont faites par ces établissements. Les établissements dont les ventes sont de $1,000,000 et plus ne font que 15 pour cent des ventes des dépôts d'essence et 20 pour cent des ventes des rassembleurs.

D'après le classement selon le genre de commerce, les grossistes réguliers dont les ventes sont de $1,000,000 et plus font 75 pour cent des ventes du commerce du charbon et du coke, 79 pour cent de celles du commerce des produits de la ferme (produits bruts), 70 pour cent de celles du commerce des produits forestiers (à l'exception du bois d'œuvre), et 87 pour cent de celles du commerce des métaux et métaux ouvrés.

Organisations multiples dans le commerce de gros

Parmi les 24,758 établissements du commerce de gros, 9,558 sont maintenus par des organisations qui exploitent plus d'un établissement. Les établissements qui font partie de ces organisations multiples forment 39 pour cent du total des établissements et font 51 pour cent du commerce global de gros.

Dans le groupe des grossistes réguliers, les compagnies à établissement unique, font 58 pour cent des ventes; les établissements exploités par les compagnies de deux unités, 10 pour cent; ceux des autres organisations multiples font les proportions suivantes du commerce global: 3-5 unités, 14 pour cent; 6-25 unités, 15 pour cent; plus de 25 unités, 13 pour cent.

Dans le groupe des dépôts d'essence et celui des rassembleurs de produits primaires, toutefois, les organisations qui exploitent plus de 25 succursales sont plus importantes, les établissements de cette catégorie contribuant pour 54 pour cent et 52 pour cent respectivement au total des ventes de leur groupe. Par contre, les organisations multiples sont moins importantes chez les agents et courtiers. Les établissements autres que ceux des organisations simples ne font que 18 pour cent des affaires du groupe.

Une comparaison de l'importance des établissements exploités par des organisations multiples dans les diverses régions économiques du Canada indique que ce genre forme une proportion beaucoup plus forte du nombre total des établissements (61 pour cent) et fournit un pourcentage beaucoup plus élevé du total des ventes dans les provinces des Prairies qu'ailleurs au Canada. Ce résultat est dû en grande partie à deux classes: les éleveurs en chaîne et les dépôts d'essence. Les organisations multiples sont les moins importantes dans la province de Québec, où les établissements qui appartiennent à ce genre ne constituent que 16 pour cent de tous les établissements et ne font que 45 pour cent des ventes.

Un tableau spécial relatif aux organisations multiples, basé sur les compagnies plutôt que sur les établissements, indique le nombre de compagnies dans chaque classe ainsi que le nombre d'unités. Ces données ne s'appliquent qu'aux grossistes réguliers.

Le tableau suivant, basé sur les compagnies plutôt que sur les établissements particuliers donne la répartition des compagnies multiples dans le groupe des grossistes réguliers selon le montant des ventes annuelles. Le total des établissements et des ventes de ce tableau diffère quelque peu des chiffres du tableau XV dans la partie principale du présent volume en raison du fait que, dans le tableau qui suit, la classification est établie d'après l'ensemble de la compagnie plutôt que d'après chaque établissement.

Le commerce de gros emploie 117,471 personnes l'année du recensement dont les salaires et gages s'élèvent à $189,449,100, soit $1,613 par employé. Le salaire moyen de l'employé varie selon la province et le mode d'opération. L'Ontario et le Québec accusent les plus hautes moyennes de salaire, soit $1,678 et $1,676 par employé. Le salaire moyen des autres provinces paraît au tableau IX.

Les marchands de gros sont les principaux employeurs du commerce de gros. Leur groupe emploie 43,570 hommes et 10,330 femmes, soit plus de 45 pour cent de tous les employés du commerce de gros. Les marchands importateurs viennent ensuite dans l'ordre d'importance comme employeurs, avec 10,512 hommes et 3,514 femmes, suivis des succursales de ventes des manufacturiers (avec stocks) ayant 10,537 hommes et 2,353 femmes. Les bureaux de ventes de district ou généraux emploient 4,744 hommes et 1,632 femmes, et les éleveurs en chaîne, 5,631 hommes et 55 femmes. Les dépôts d'essence des divers genres emploient 4,734 hommes et 234 femmes.

Un tableau des établissements de gros dressé selon le nombre d'employés révèle que, sur 24,758 établissements, 7,053 ou 28 pour cent sont exploités par les seuls propriétaires sans l'aide d'employés rémunérés. Ces établissements font 5 pour cent du commerce global des grossistes. Un autre 31 pour cent des établissements de gros ne compte qu'un seul employé et contribue pour 8 pour cent au total des ventes. Dix-neuf pour cent de tous les établissements ont de 2 à 4 employés, 10 pour cent en ont de 5 à 9, 6 pour cent de 10 à 19, tandis que 4 pour cent en ont de 20 à 49. Les établissements de 50 à 99 employés constituent 1 pour cent du nombre total et ceux de plus de 100 employés, moins de  $\frac{1}{2}$  pour cent. Ces établissements plus importants de 100 employés ou plus font 9 pour cent du total des ventes et emploient 13 pour cent de tous les employés du commerce de gros.

Les grossistes réguliers, dont les fonctions sont plus nombreuses que celles des autres genres de grossistes, exigent aussi dans l'ensemble les services d'un plus grand nombre d'employés. Ceci est prouvé par le fait que 37 pour cent seulement de tous les grossistes réguliers ont moins de deux employés, tandis que 73 pour cent des établissements de tous les autres genres appartiennent à cette catégorie.

Dépenses d'exploitation du commerce de gros

Comme les dépenses d'exploitation des établissements de gros dépendent en grande partie de l'étendue de leurs services, les chiffres des frais d'exploitation sont présentés pour chaque genre d'établissements de gros ainsi que pour des commerces choisis de chaque genre.

Les dépenses d'exploitation des établissements de gros sont déclarées sous les rubriques suivantes: (a) salaires, gages et commissions des employés; (b) loyer; (c) toutes autres dépenses d'exploitation (y compris les taxes autres que l'impôt sur le revenu, l'assurance, l'éclairage, le chauffage, la livraison, les fournitures). Dans les tableaux du présent rapport, toutefois, le seul article de dépenses indiqué séparément est celui de la rémunération des employés. Tous les établissements de gros ne transmettent pas les détails complets de leurs dépenses d'exploitation. Les tableaux, par conséquent, ne renferment que les chiffres des compagnies qui ont fourni tous les renseignements sur leurs frais d'exploitation. Les proportions des dépenses d'exploitation indiquées dans les tableaux ne doivent être considérées comme représentatives que si les ventes des établissements qui transmettent leurs dépenses forment une grande partie du total des ventes de tous les établissements d'une classe particulière. Il faut noter aussi que dans les chiffres des dépenses d'exploitation il n'a pas été tenu compte de la rémunération des propriétaires activement engagés dans un commerce non incorporé.

Chez les grossistes réguliers, ce sont les expéditeurs à vue vendant surtout les produits primaires au wagon et les marchands exportateurs qui accusent les dépenses d'exploitation les plus faibles. Les dépenses d'exploitation des expéditeurs à vue équivalent à 3.01 pour cent de leurs ventes et celles des marchands exportateurs à 3.48 pour cent. Les proportions des dépenses d'exploitation des autres genres de grossistes réguliers sont les suivantes: grossistes vendant à un groupe de détaillants indépendants, 10.24 pour cent; marchands de gros, 11.28 pour cent; importateurs, 11.72 pour cent; distributeurs ambulants, 12.32 pour cent; grossistes par correspondance, 29.96 pour cent. Chez les marchands de gros, ces frais sont presque également partagés entre la rémunération et les autres dépenses. Quant aux autres genres, toutefois, les "autres dépenses" forment plus de la moitié du total.

Les dépenses d'exploitation des agents et courtiers sont beaucoup moins élevées, ce qui reflète les fonctions plus restreintes de ce genre de grossistes. Les dépenses d'exploitation des courtiers et des agents et courtiers exportateurs s'élèvent à moins de 1 pour cent du volume du commerce, tandis que celles des agents acheteurs s'établissent à 1.21 pour cent des ventes. Les marchands à commission, les agents de manufacturiers, les compagnies de ventes aux enchères et les agents et courtiers importateurs accusent des dépenses d'exploitation qui varient entre 2.72 et 3.30 pour cent des ventes. Les agents vendeurs, qui s'occupent habituellement d'écouler la production entière ou un groupe de produits d'une manufacture, font des dépenses d'exploitation proportionnellement plus fortes, soit 4.76 pour cent.

Sauf deux exceptions, les divers genres de rassembleurs de produits primaires ne diffèrent que légèrement quant à la proportion de leurs dépenses d'exploitation par rapport à leurs ventes. Les sociétés coopératives de vente, les acheteurs à la campagne de produits primaires, les éleveurs indépendants et les acheteurs en ville de produits primaires accusent des dépenses qui varient étroitement entre 6.39 et 6.86 pour cent de leurs ventes. Les dépenses d'exploitation des agences coopératives de vente équivalent à 3.55 pour cent des ventes, tandis que celles des emballers et expéditeurs s'élèvent à 19.67 pour cent, ce qui indique le besoin d'une main-d'œuvre plus considérable pour emballer les marchandises ainsi que de fournitures et d'entrepôts additionnels.

Chez les marchands de gros, le pourcentage des dépenses d'exploitation par rapport aux ventes varie entre 4.91 et 40.31 pour cent. Les grossistes qui font le commerce de denrées importantes comme le tabac, les épiceries et les produits alimentaires tendent à accuser les proportions les plus faibles de dépenses d'exploitation. Ceux qui sont engagés dans le commerce de denrées écoulées en vrac, comme le bois à pulpe, le charbon et le coke, et les métaux et métaux ouvrés, déclarent aussi des dépenses d'exploitation peu élevées. Par contre, de fortes dépenses sont déclarées dans les genres suivants de commerce: articles d'optique, articles en caoutchouc (assortiment complet), outillage d'automobile, appareils de photographie et de cinématographie, livres, journaux et périodiques, bijouterie, cuir et articles en cuir, meubles et articles de ménage.

Les dépenses d'exploitation de certains genres de commerce choisis sont indiquées aussi selon le montant des ventes annuelles.

Distribution des ventes par classes de clients

Le relevé demandait aux grossistes de répartir leurs ventes totales sous les rubriques suivantes:

- (1) ventes aux détaillants pour revente.
- (2) ventes aux consommateurs industriels, professionnels et d'institutions (manufacturiers, chemins de fer, corps gouvernementaux, entrepreneurs, utilités publiques, etc.).
- (3) ventes aux grossistes ou semi-grossistes.
- (4) ventes aux consommateurs ménagers.
- (5) ventes aux acheteurs de pays étrangers (y compris les ventes aux succursales d'établissements canadiens établies à l'étranger).

La répartition des ventes de gros par catégorie de clients varie considérablement selon le mode d'opération et le genre de commerce de chaque catégorie de grossistes. La plus grande partie des ventes des grossistes réguliers est faite aux détaillants, tandis que les succursales de ventes des manufacturiers vendent surtout aux consommateurs industriels et autres grands consommateurs. La plus forte proportion des affaires des agents et courtiers consiste en ventes aux grossistes ou semi-grossistes, bien qu'un pourcentage considérable des ventes soit fait aux consommateurs industriels ou autres grands consommateurs.

Dans le classement des ventes par catégorie de clients, les dépôts d'essence offrent certaines caractéristiques qui ne sont pas communes aux autres genres de commerce et la distribution de leurs ventes est donc présentée séparément. Le plus fort volume des ventes de ce groupe est fait aux détaillants mais le 10 pour cent des ventes faites directement aux fermiers et autres producteurs primaires constitue une caractéristique distinctive.

Chez les grossistes réguliers, les commerces dont la plus forte proportion des ventes est faite directement aux détaillants sont ceux qui s'occupent de marchandises de consommateurs comme la mercerie, les meubles, les marchandises générales, l'épicerie, la bijouterie. Par ailleurs, les genres de commerce où ce moyen de distribution est le moins important sont ceux qui s'occupent de marchandises industrielles comme les machines et les métaux. Ces commerces font la plus grande partie de leurs ventes aux consommateurs industriels. Les produits agricoles, les produits forestiers et le papier sont d'autres genres de commerce où les ventes aux détaillants ne forment qu'une faible proportion du total. Le plus fort pourcentage de leurs ventes va à l'exportation. Les grossistes réguliers engagés dans la vente de produits agricoles, de produits alimentaires (excepté l'épicerie), de tabac et de produits du tabac, font voir une proportion considérable de ventes à d'autres grossistes et semi-grossistes.

Le groupe de grossistes dont la plus forte proportion des ventes est faite aux prix de détail ou aux consommateurs ménagers, soit 9.8 pour cent est celui de l'automobile. Les groupes du charbon et du coke, des articles pour la ferme et de la quincaillerie sont les seuls autres commerces où plus de 5 pour cent des ventes sont faites directement aux consommateurs.

Plus de 50 pour cent de toutes les ventes des succursales de ventes des manufacturiers sont faites à des consommateurs industriels et autres grands consommateurs. Cependant, la proportion de cette catégorie d'acheteurs est beaucoup plus grande pour les succursales de manufacturiers engagées dans la vente de mercerie et vêtement, d'articles électriques, d'articles pour la ferme, de cuir et articles en cuir, de métaux et métaux ouvrés. Le grossiste garde son importance dans le régime de distribution de certaines variétés de marchandises même si le manufacturier a établi des succursales de ventes. Dans le commerce du tabac et des produits du tabac, 74 pour cent des ventes des succursales de ventes des manufacturiers sont faites à des grossistes ou semi-grossistes. Le grossiste est aussi le plus grand acheteur chez les manufacturiers qui maintiennent des succursales de ventes dans le commerce de la plomberie et du chauffage, tandis qu'une forte proportion du commerce des succursales de ventes des manufacturiers de bois d'œuvre et de matériaux de construction, de quincaillerie, d'épicerie et spécialités alimentaires, et de meubles se fait avec d'autres grossistes ou semi-grossistes. Les ventes directes aux détaillants des succursales de ventes des manufacturiers constituent la plus forte proportion des ventes des groupes de l'automobile, des produits alimentaires (excepté l'épicerie), des meubles, de la bijouterie et des livres.

Les "autres grossistes et semi-grossistes" constituent le débouché le plus important pour les agents et courtiers en général. Ce débouché est plus important pour certains genres de commerce que pour d'autres. Les agents des groupes de l'automobile, des articles pour la ferme, des produits alimentaires (excepté l'épicerie), du tabac et des produits du tabac, recourent aux grossistes et semi-grossistes comme moyens de distribution pour plus de 70 pour cent de leurs ventes. Les consommateurs industriels et autres grands consommateurs forment la principale catégorie d'acheteurs chez les agents de cuir et articles en cuir, de machines, outillage et fournitures, de métaux et métaux ouvrés, de papier et produits du papier, de textiles et tissus (autres que la mercerie, le cordage et la ficelle). Les agents, règle générale, ne traitent pas directement avec les détaillants, le total des ventes à cette catégorie d'acheteurs n'atteignant que 15 pour cent des ventes globales des agents et courtiers. Cependant, dans certaines variétés de marchandises, comme la bijouterie, les meubles, les articles de récréation et de sports, la mercerie et le vêtement, les détaillants forment la catégorie d'acheteurs la plus importante. De fortes proportions des ventes globales des groupes de l'automobile, des produits chimiques et connexes, du charbon et du coke, sont également faites directement aux détaillants.

Les deux principaux genres de rassembleurs de produits primaires font voir une distribution quelque peu différente des ventes d'après la catégorie de clients. Les ventes des rassembleurs de produits de la ferme (produits bruts) se répartissent comme suit: 66 pour cent du total à des consommateurs industriels et autres grands consommateurs et 23 pour cent à d'autres grossistes. Par ailleurs, la plus grande partie, soit 57 pour cent des ventes des rassembleurs de produits alimentaires (excepté l'épicerie), ont été faites à d'autres grossistes, avec moins de 9 pour cent à des consommateurs industriels et autres grands consommateurs.

Commerce de gros selon le mode de propriété

Le tableau 13 répartit les grossistes selon le mode de propriété: propriété personnelle, société, corporation, association coopérative, ou autres formes. Des 24,758 grossistes de toutes catégories au Canada, 12,157 ou un peu moins de la moitié sont des compagnies incorporées. Celles-ci contribuent cependant pour 78 pour cent au volume total des affaires. Les propriétaires personnels viennent ensuite au nombre de 10,815 et font 15 pour cent des ventes de tous les grossistes. Les sociétés sont au nombre de 1,394 avec 4 pour cent des ventes totales, tandis que 366 associations coopératives contribuent pour 3 pour cent aux ventes globales des grossistes.

Il y a une certaine variation dans la répartition des établissements et des ventes entre les diverses formes d'organisation selon le mode d'opération. Près de 100 pour cent des ventes des succursales de ventes des manufacturiers sont faites par des compagnies incorporées. Une proportion moins forte du commerce des agents et courtiers se fait selon ce mode de propriété, les ventes étant partagées entre les compagnies et les propriétaires personnels. Les ventes des rassembleurs de produits primaires sont faites en grande partie par les compagnies, tandis que les associations coopératives apportent une assez forte contribution à ce genre d'affaires.

La proportion des ventes faite selon les différents modes de propriété ne varie que très légèrement entre les différentes provinces. Les compagnies incorporées fournissent une plus forte part des ventes totales dans le Québec que dans toute autre région économique. Elles sont moins importantes quant au volume d'affaires dans les provinces des Prairies, bien que le nombre d'établissements ainsi classés s'élève à 6,675 dans cette région. Ce chiffre comprend chaque élévateur des compagnies d'éleveurs en chaîne, au nombre de 5,265, de sorte que, compte tenu de ce fait, l'importance des compagnies dans d'autres genres de commerce dans les provinces des Prairies est beaucoup moins grande que dans les autres provinces. Les associations coopératives font voir une plus forte proportion du volume total des affaires dans les provinces de l'Ouest que dans celles de l'Est.

Continuité de propriété dans le commerce de gros

Les établissements de gros durent plus longtemps en général que les établissements de détail. Le taux effectif de disparition des entreprises de gros et de détail ne peut être calculé d'après les chiffres du recensement, étant donné que les renseignements disponibles ne s'appliquent qu'aux années d'existence des établissements exploités en 1941. Le nombre d'entreprises commerciales qui peuvent avoir été discontinuées ou avoir changé de propriétaire en tout temps avant 1941 n'est pas connu. Il est significatif, toutefois, que 62 pour cent des magasins de détail exploités en 1941 l'étaient aussi avant 1938, tandis que parmi les établissements de gros également exploités en 1941, 74 pour cent le sont depuis cinq ans ou plus.

Parmi les provinces, les Maritimes et les Prairies accusent les plus faibles proportions de commerces de gros établis entre 1930 et 1941. Par contre, ces régions comptent un nombre relativement plus élevé de commerces établis au cours de la période 1919-1929 que celui de toute autre région. Les Provinces maritimes ont le plus fort pourcentage d'établissements de gros dont le propriétaire actuel l'était déjà avant 1910.

Ventes au comptant et à crédit

Le financement de la distribution par le crédit accordé aux acheteurs, qui peuvent être des détaillants, des consommateurs industriels ou commerciaux ou d'autres grossistes, est l'une des fonctions des grossistes. Cette fonction n'est pas une caractéristique essentielle du commerce de gros au sens large et plusieurs genres de revendeurs ne font pas crédit. Le tableau qui traite des ventes à terme, par conséquent, est basé sur les établissements qui sont classés comme grossistes réguliers et qui normalement assument les risques financiers inhérents au crédit. Toutes les compagnies ne sont pas en mesure de fournir des renseignements sur les ventes à termes, mais 64 pour cent de tous les établissements déclarent le montant des affaires faites à terme. Ces établissements font 73 pour cent des ventes du groupe des grossistes réguliers.

Toutes les ventes non au comptant sont considérées comme ventes à terme. Celles-ci comprennent par conséquent les transactions à court terme d'un à trente jours aussi bien que les termes plus longs. D'après les rapports soumis, 82 pour cent des ventes des grossistes réguliers sont faites à crédit.

L'étendue des affaires à crédit varie selon le genre de commerce, mais très peu de commerces font plus de 40 pour cent de leurs affaires au comptant exclusivement. Le pourcentage de ventes à terme est beaucoup plus faible dans le groupe des produits de la ferme que dans tout autre genre de commerce.

Comptes à recevoir

Toutes les compagnies ne déclarent pas le montant des comptes à recevoir de clients dans leurs livres à la fin de l'année 1941. Les montants inscrits aux tableaux ne représentent que les comptes à recevoir des compagnies qui les ont déclarés. Chez les grossistes réguliers, les comptes à recevoir de clients à la fin de 1941 s'élèvent à $242,121,600, soit 10 pour cent des ventes totales du groupe au cours de l'année. Les agents et courtiers en général n'offrent pas de crédit, de sorte que les comptes à recevoir forment une proportion beaucoup plus faible du total des ventes de ce groupe, soit 1.4 pour cent. Les rassembleurs engagés dans la première phase de la distribution de produits primaires font la plus grande partie de leurs affaires au comptant et en conséquence leurs comptes à recevoir à la fin de l'année forment également un faible pourcentage du total de leurs ventes, à savoir 1.7 pour cent.

Ce renseignement est fourni de façon moins uniforme par les succursales de ventes des manufacturiers et les dépôts d'essence. Bien que ces deux genres déclarent des comptes à recevoir qui équivalent à 9.6 pour cent et 9.1 pour cent respectivement de leurs ventes annuelles, il est fort probable que ces proportions sous-estiment la valeur réelle des comptes créditeurs dus à la fin de l'année du recensement.

Ventes de produits

En plus de donner le total des ventes nettes de chaque établissement, les compagnies sont priées de répartir leurs ventes selon les produits. Toutes les compagnies ne sont pas en mesure de fournir ces renseignements, de sorte qu'il est impossible d'obtenir une répartition complète des ventes nettes selon les denrées. Les chiffres sont indiqués pour chaque genre de commerce qui a transmis un nombre suffisant de rapports des ventes selon les denrées. La mesure dans laquelle les ventes de chaque groupe sont réparties selon les denrées est indiquée par la "couverture en marchandises" avant les chiffres de chaque genre de commerce.

La répartition des ventes d'après les classes de denrées n'est donnée que pour les grossistes réguliers. Il n'a pas été tenté de déterminer la valeur totale des denrées particulières de tous les genres de grossistes. Étant donné que des grossistes de différents modes d'opération et genres de commerce se partagent une variété de transactions intermédiaires tout en vendant à des acheteurs ultimes au Canada et à des acheteurs de l'étranger, il se produit un double emploi considérable au sujet de la valeur brute des ventes de gros dans tous les modes d'opération et tous les genres de commerce. Même chez les grossistes réguliers, certaines affaires sont faites entre les grossistes importants et les grossistes moins importants ou les semi-grossistes ainsi qu'entre les commerces de différents genres. Aucun total, par conséquent, n'a été calculé pour les denrées en particulier. Le tableau qui a trait aux denrées indique les principaux item de chaque commerce, le nombre d'établissements qui vendent chaque denrée et la proportion que forment les ventes de chaque denrée du total des ventes du genre de commerce. Une description détaillée du tableau des denrées paraît à la section "Analyse des ventes par produits" immédiatement avant le tableau 19.

Activités manufacturières de grossistes réguliers

Certains établissements, qui ont été classés comme établissements de gros pour les fins du recensement, sont aussi engagés dans la fabrication ou le conditionnement de certaines denrées qu'ils vendent. Comme il a été indiqué dans la section précédente sur le "double emploi", la proportion des ventes de telles marchandises doit être inférieure à cinquante pour cent des ventes totales avant qu'un établissement soit classé comme maison de gros.

Des 9,417 grossistes réguliers, 561 déclarent être engagés dans la fabrication dans leurs propres établissements. Les ventes de marchandises fabriquées par ces établissements s'élèvent à $48,816,600 en 1941 ou 2.1 pour cent des ventes totales de tous les grossistes réguliers.

Le tableau suivant donne le nombre de grossistes réguliers dans des genres choisis de commerce qui sont engagés dans la fabrication, le volume des ventes de marchandises fabriquées par ces grossistes, et la proportion des ventes globales de ce groupe représentée par la vente de ces marchandises. Les activités manufacturières sont plus répandues dans certains commerces que dans d'autres. Les genres de commerce où les ventes de marchandises fabriquées dans l'établissement forment plus de 10 pour cent des ventes totales de toutes marchandises sont les suivants: foin, grain et provende; vitre; autres machines, outillage et fournitures industriels; outillage et fournitures de chirurgiens, médecins et hôpitaux; autres outillages et fournitures professionnels; outillage et fournitures de chauffage; outillage et fournitures de plomberie et de chauffage (assortiment complet); huiles, graisses et cires; et articles d'optique. De forts volumes de fabrication sont aussi déclarés dans les groupes de la mercerie, de l'épicerie (assortiment complet) et du bois d'œuvre, mais les ventes de marchandises fabriquées par ces grossistes forment moins de 10 pour cent des ventes totales.

(1) All establishments did not report full particulars of operating expenses. This table includes only those establishments which gave total operating expenses. The operating expenses shown in this table should be considered representative only when the sales of establishments reporting total expenses form a high proportion of the total sales of all establishments in the same classification, as shown in Table 3.

(2) Exclusive of any allowance for remuneration of active proprietors of unincorporated companies.

(3) Expenses data for Commission Stations not available.

(4) Tous les établissements n'ont pas fourni des détails complets de leurs dépenses d'exploitation. Ce tableau ne comprend que les établissements qui les ont fournis au complet. Les dépenses d'exploitation de ce tableau doivent être considérées comme représentatives seulement lorsque les ventes des établissements déclarant les dépenses totales forment une haute proportion de ventes totales de tous les établissements dans la même classification, indiquées dans le Tableau 3.

(5) Moins toute allocation pour la rémunération des propriétaires de compagnies non incorporées travaillant dans leurs établissements.

(6) Dépenses d'exploitation pour les dépôts à commission non disponibles.
